BRITAIN SHARPLY WARNS JAPAN

Orders 'Blond Anna' to Electric Chair March 10

JUDGE DENIES NEW TRIAL IN POISON DEATH

Guilt 'Overwhelming' Jurist Says in Written Opinion Upholding Verdict.

WEEPS ON WAY TO JAIL

Mrs. Hahn Calm as Court Sets Death Date, Breaks Down On Return to Cell.

CINCINNATI — (AP) — Ann Marie Hahn, 31-year-old mother, was sentenced today to die in Ohio's electric chair March 10 for the murder-by-poison of Jacob Wagner, 78, a gardener-acquaintance.

Overruling a defense motion for a new trial, Judge Charles S. Bell wrote in a 32-page opinion: "In the opinion of the court, the evidence was so overwhelming that no verdict other than guilty could have been reached by the jury. The verdict is not contrary to law."

Linked to 4 Deaths.

Mrs. Hahn was convicted Nov. 6 by a jury of 11 women and one man. The month-long trial was marked by testimony linking her with the asserted poison deaths of three other elderly acquaintances, Albert Palmer, 72; George Gsellman, 67, and George Obendoerfer, 67, in what the state contended was "the biggest mass murder in the country. . . . A plot to slay for gain."

Mrs. Hahn retained the same stoic calm that marked her trial demeanor as she heard Judge Bell pronounce sentence. Pale, she pursed her lips slightly, with eyes a bit downcast.

Escorted to the bar by Bailiff Charles Stagnaro, Mrs. Hahn spoke but briefly as Judge Bell asked her if she had anything to say.

"I'm innocent, your honor," she said.

"You stated that to the jury, Mrs. Hahn," returned the jurist, "and the jury found against you."

Led from the room, Mrs. Hahn broke into uncontrollable tears, and within five minutes after being returned to her cell, sent word to Warden Andrew Frank that she was ill. A physician was summoned.

There was no immediate indication of when she would be removed to the Ohio state peniten-

HITS CAB SPEED

Bates Asks Council to Order Governors on Taxis.

A city ordinance designed to make it mandatory that all taxicabs in Mansfield be equipped with governors set at a maximum speed of 35 miles an hour will be presented to city council at its next regular meeting by Police Chief Meade K. Bates.

Bates said today that he had requested City Solicitor Herbert H. Schettler to draw up the legislation after insurance companies had told him that they would have to cancel policies issued to cab companies unless the governors were installed.

He added that this action was the result of numerous accidents involving the cabs.

The chief explained that a city ordinance now in effect makes it compulsory for cab companies to carry liability and property damage insurance.

General Gerardo Machado, shown above, one time president of Cuba, today faced extradition to Cuba on charges of murder and embezzlement. The former "strong man" of Cuba, now broken in health, had sought refuge in the United States after he was accused in Cuba's "mass murders."

MACHADO UNDER POLICE GUARD

Deposed Cuban President In Hospital, Maps Fight of 'Mass Murder' Charge.

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— General Gerardo Machado, deposed president of Cuba, was under 24-hour guard in Murray Hill hospital today, pending his appearance before U. S. Commissioner Garrett W. Cotter in extradition proceedings instituted by the Cuban government.

Machado, who came to the United States from Canada for an operation, is wanted in Cuba on charges of murder and embezzlement.

Although his attorney, Francis A. O'Neill, former U. S. commissioner, said he would surrender next week, Deputy U. S. Marshalls went to the hospital yesterday and served a warrant ordering his appearance at the federal building Monday.

O'Neill said he would move to dismiss the extradition proceedings. He said the alleged mass murders laid to Machado in 1933 were "deaths due to the exercise

John Plichesski, 29, the first rescued, died shortly after workmen reached him last night. The second, Charles Ruganis, 34, was free to the waist and directing the efforts to free him. Charles Bolinski, 35, the other miner, had not been located.

BOUND OVER IN $9 HOLD-UP OF GAS STATION

Mansfielder, Caught 10 Minutes After Robbery, Enters Plea of Guilty in Court.

DENIES ISALY HOLD-UP

Dairy Store Employes Unable To Identify Suspect as 'Paper Bag' Bandit.

Glenn A. Lett, 27-year-old father of two children, who was captured by police yesterday shortly after he allegedly staged a daylight hold-up, pleaded guilty to a charge of armed robbery today when arraigned in municipal court before Judge G. E. Kalbfleisch and was bound over to the grand jury under $2,500 bond. Unable to furnish bond, he was to be taken to the county jail this afternoon.

The former inmate of the Mansfield reformatory was captured by Capt. T. M. Bell and Officer Frend C. Boals 10 minutes after he had held up the Pure Oil station at 341 Rowland avenue and forced M. H. Beard, the proprietor, to turn over $9.60.

Quizzed In Store Robbery.

Detectives failed to connect Lett with the hold-up of an Isaly Dairy Company store Tuesday night after questioning him for several hours yesterday afternoon.

Police said the methods used by Lett in the gas station robbery were similar to those employed by a "paper bag" bandit who held up four persons in the Isaly store and escaped with $38.

Lett denied any part in the Isaly robbery.

Efforts to link Lett with the robbery failed when employes of the Isaly store were unable to identify him as the gunman who ordered one of them to place store receipts in a brown paper sack during a hold-up Tuesday night.

Signs Confession.

Police said that in a signed statement Lett said he left his home on Chilton avenue at noon yesterday telling his wife that he was going to the Westinghouse plant to get his pay. He said he had received his wages Wednes-

At least 15 women, some of them with young babies, were removed to safety when fire broke out at St. Ann's Maternity hospital in Cleveland. Although firemen soon managed to get the blaze under control, nurses worked fast in removing the patients. A fine dinner and an interesting program has been arranged by The News-Journal for the annual grid party, and a man whom everybody will want to hear will be the main speaker. His identity and other details of the affair will be revealed next week.

WARNS OF COST

Roosevelt Says Farm Bill Must Stay Within Fund.

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— President Roosevelt today advised Senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley, D., Ky., that expenditures for the new farm program must be kept within $500,000,000 or new revenues provided for additional amounts needed.

The president in a letter to Barkley said that the $500,000,000 now allocated to agricultural programs is the only amount available in the budget structure for farm purposes.

In his statement that farm bill expenditures must be kept within $500,000,000, the president quoted from senate debate on the measure in which the majority leader and Chairman Ellison D. Smith, D., S. C., of the agriculture committee agreed that $625,000,000 was available to finance the program.

SPANKING SAVES CHOKING BABY

Dislodges Marble From Throat of Toledo Infant.

TOLEDO—(AP)—A husky fireman heartily spanked an 11-month-old boy last night.

But he will not be censured because the paddling saved the life of Dale Wilson. Dale swallowed a marble and began choking.

While Fireman Harry Barnes suspended the child by his heels, Lieut. Arnold F. Papanhagen paddled vigorously. The marble fell from the boy's throat.

President Donald L. Barnes' announcement said Street was chosen "because of his long experience and uniform success in baseball."

STRIKES SNAG

Tax Revision Plan to Go Over To Regular Session.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The possibility of a revision of taxes to aid business at the special session of congress was virtually blocked by technical difficulties today.

Although President Roosevelt has announced he wanted action on the proposed revision as soon as congress was ready, the house ways and means tax subcommittee learned that from two to four weeks would be necessary to draft a bill even if all the details were agreed on by nightfall.

Members of the tax group believe they have made swift progress in their three week study of general tax revision, but they are still far from finished. This difficulty, coupled with others in the way of immediate revision, seemed to preclude action before Christmas. Only four weeks remain and both houses of congress promise to spend all of next week debating farm legislation.

DEATH CLAIMS BALLYHOO ACE

Dexter Fellows, 66, Dean of Circus Press Agents, Dies In Southern Hospital.

HATTIESBURG, Miss.—(U.P.)—Dexter Fellows, 66, dean of circus ballyhoo men, who followed the "big top" around the country for more than 40 years, died in an oxygen tent last night after a long illness.

Dr. Grady Cook announced that death was due to bronchial pneumonia following an attack of typhoid fever six weeks ago. Mrs. Fellows was at the bedside in South Mississippi infirmary when the end came at 10:30 p. m. EST.

Fellows, who made the United States "circus conscious" as the advance agent of Ringling Brothers, Barnum and Bailey, became ill in Oklahoma while enroute to the circus winter quarters at Sarasota, Fla. He and Mrs. Fellows continued on to New Orleans, then to Hattiesburg where is became necessary for him to enter the hospital.

SIOUX LOOKOUT, Ont. —(U.P.)—Eleven persons aboard a Starratt Airlines plane, forced down in the wilderness of northwestern Ontario by dense fog, today awaited clear weather before resuming their journey.

Missing for 48 hours, Pilot Ken Smith reported the plane safe on Dog Hole Day, midway on its route between Pickle lake and Sioux Lookout.

The fog, which also forced down search planes, was expected to make return of the plane impossible for 20 hours.

'Mountain' Crumbles, 3 Miss Death

Boulders and Trees Slide Down on Los Angeles Scenic Highway.

(Picture on Page 9)

LOS ANGELES—(AP)—A million tons of earth and rock tumbled down Elysian park's "moving mountain" last night, and today engineers forecast another even greater avalanche.

Three workmen narrowly escaped when the landslide, 400 feet long, spilled into scenic Riverside drive, breaking power lines and surrounding several buildings with debris.

Extra police barred sightseers from the district.

Representatives of the city engineer's office expressed grave concern. They said the slide probably was only the forerunner of a greater avalanche, which might tumble from the summit, destroying the Dayton avenue bridge and clogging the Los Angeles river bed.

* * *

Elysian park is about a mile from the downtown business area. The "moving mountain" is about 350 feet in height.

Boulders, earth and trees spread last night across Riverside drive, for aproximately 400 feet, overflowing into the Los Angeles river bed. The debris piled up to a depth of more than 40 feet in places.

About 100 feet of the drive was carried away by the slide.

The mountain has been under constant watch by geologists and engineers since the earth movement first was noticed Oct. 25, but the slide came almost without warning.

The three workmen who escaped the slide were from the bureau of water and power, repairing a broken water main.

The men, C. C. Ault, C. A. Tomson and V. W. Buss, heard a light rattle of stones. Without stopping to determine extent of the slide, they dropped their tools and fled.

* * *

"It happened too fast for us to describe it," Ault said. "We heard a slight noise as the first rocks began to tumble down, but didn't wait to see. We all ran as fast as we could towards the Dayton avenue bridge and escaped the slide by only a small margin."

ADDS TOWNSHIP

County Relief Set-Up to Aid Jefferson Needy.

The Richland county relief setup will be expanded Dec. 1 to include the Jefferson township unit, Miss Mildred Armstrong, county welfare supervisor, announced today.

"Because the county has been contributing funds for relief in the Bellville-Jefferson township area since last April, enlarging of the county unit will not place a proportionate added financial burden on the county fund," Miss Armstrong said.

Commissioners were not so optimistic, however.

"We have had trouble enough with the three sub-divisions already under our supervision, and only additional help from the state will solve the problem," C. L. Mitchell, chairman of the commissioners, said.

The present set-up includes Mansfield, Madison township and Shelby. Other townships in the county are paying their own relief costs.

London Tells Ambassador to 'Leave No Doubt' of Stand On Maritime Policy.

JAPS TAKE OVER CUSTOMS

British Expect U. S., France To Follow With Similar Steps in Far East.

(By Associated Press)

Great Britain today acted to warn Japan that British rights in the complex Shanghai situation must be considered and London officials indicated they expected the United States and France to take similar action.

The British ambassador in Tokyo was instructed to leave the Japanese government "in no doubt whatsoever" that Britain insisted on its right to be consulted concerning any changes Japan contemplated regarding the Chinese maritime customs and Chinese communications facilities in the conquered Shanghai area.

Pledged for Loans.

Britain, the United States and other foreign powers are interested in the Chinese customs because their revenues are largely pledged for payment of foreign loans. Since conquering the Shanghai area the Japanese have greatly increased their power in the customs and have taken control of all Chinese communications facilities there.

Britain's growing concern over the Shanghai tangle completed with her European anxieties, and it was indicated in London that the Far East might take a prominent place in impending talks between British and French statesmen.

A spokesman of the Japanese embassy in Shanghai emphasized that his government considered it had a clear right to take over all authority and agencies of the Chinese government in the Shanghai region and intended to exercise its rights immediately.

The Japanese legions continued their drive toward Nanking, China's evacuated capital, thrusting westward along several avenues north and west of Lake Tai. Columns drove also toward Hangchow, capital of Chekiang province, and Wuhu, important Yangtze river port 55 miles southsouthwest of Nanking.

Sent To Jail As He Accuses Wife Of Lying In Court

Because he spoke out of turn and inferred his wife was a liar in common pleas court this morning, John Bautz, 28, of 49 Pleasant avenue, will spend the weekend in the county jail.

Appearing in court for a hearing on a restraining order sought by his wife, Barbara, in a divorce action, Bautz accused his wife of locking him out of the house when he returned home early Friday. Mrs. Bautz denied the accusation, whereupon Bautz asked: "Why do you lie like that?"

Judge C. H. Huston countered with: "Lock him up until 4 p. m. Monday for contempt of court."

Bautz, who was charged with cruelty and neglect in the divorce action filed yesterday by his wife, was ordered to pay half of his weekly salary for the support of her and the couple's six-month-old child.

Judge Huston also ordered Bautz to find new living quarters after allowing the temporary restraining order to enjoin the defendant from molesting his wife or child. Hearing on the divorce action, the second filed by Mrs. Bautz since their marriage two years ago, had not been set today.

Traditional Games Bring 1937 Grid Season to Close Today

The 1937 football season comes to a virtual close today with the east and south sharing national attention.

With the exception of a few scattered games through December and the usual "bowl" clashes on New Year's day, today's contests will mark the end of the campaign.

From a national standpoint, the two most important clashes are Fordham-New York U. at New York and Duke-Pittsburgh at Durham, N. C. However, the largest crowd of the season, more than 100,000, will fill Philadelphia's Municipal stadium for the Army-Navy game, a traditional battle which sold itself on color alone as both elevens have had dismal seasons.

A fourth banner game will be played at South Bend, Ind., with Notre Dame concluding its season against Southern California. Stanford meets Columbia at New York.

Three feature games are scheduled in the southwest. Southern Methodist battles Texas Christian, Rice faces Baylor and Centenary tackles Oklahoma Aggies. Nebraska meets Kansas State.

The Auburn-Florida, Georgia-Georgia Tech and Louisiana State-Tulane games top the card in the south. Missouri plays U. C. L. A. and San Francisco entertains Michigan State on the coast.

On Sunday, Santa Clara meets Gonzaga and Villanova faces Loyola of Los Angeles.

Christmas Near, Activity at Yule Headquarters Indicates

There was a buzz of familiar activity in a small office on the second floor of The News-Journal building today.

Telephones were ringing—typewriters were clacking busily, and card files were being examined. There was discussion about stage lighting, about costumes and a strange jargon of theatrical terms.

In case you haven't guessed—the scene is the headquarters of Mansfield's Community Christmas, where representatives of The News-Journal, the American Legion and the Warner theaters were busy making plans for the usual Christmas show, and deciding what's to go in the baskets that will be distributed to the city's needy on Dec. 24.

Mansfield's ready to help again—there's no doubt of that. For shortly after yesterday's News-Journal reached the street, carrying the announcement of the Christmas show—the date's Dec. 18, remember—the Community Christmas phone began to ring (the number's Canal 2525) with offers of help on the 1937 program.

All that help can be used, for this year's task of filling Yule baskets is going to be as large as any in previous years.

And the show—plans are going along nicely, thank you! And next week we'll let you in on the details.

SETS DEATH DAY FOR MRS. HAHN

Judge Sentences Mrs. Hahn to Die in Chair March 10; New Trial Refused.

tiary at Columbus, to await electrocution.

Remain Optimistic.

Since her conviction early this month, Mrs. Hahn has clung to the belief that she would never be electrocuted. She broke down when she learned that plans were being made to transfer her to Ohio penitentiary, pleading that she be allowed to remain in county jail, so she could be near her son, Oscar, 12, who had testified in her behalf at the trial.

If Mrs. Hahn is electrocuted, she will be the first woman to die in Ohio's electric chair.

COLUMBUS — (AP) — Warden James C. Woodard of Ohio penitentiary asserted today all was in readiness to receive Anna Marie Hahn in a special cell on the third floor of the prison hospital.

The second woman to be sentenced to death by electrocution in Ohio, she will be the first to pay the supreme penalty if appeals fail. Julia Maude Lowther, sentenced to die in 1931, was given a new trial and received a life sentence.

Appeals by Mrs. Hahn's attorneys probably will delay by several months her execution date, set for March 10.

The first appeal generally is taken to the district appellate court, which grants a stay of execution until it rules on the case. Similar procedure is followed by the state supreme court.

When attorneys for condemned persons lose all court appeals, clemency is sought from the governor, who is empowered to commute a death sentence to one of life imprisonment.

SHELBY — Mrs. Carrie M. DuBois, 84, died today at the home, 227 West Main street, after a lingering illness. Mrs. Du Bois was born Aug. 10, 1853, in Crawford county, and came here 15 years ago. She was preceded in death by her husband, Herbert, and one son.

WPA UNION TO PUSH INQUIRY

Names Committee of Five to Continue Investigation of Death of WPA Worker.

A committee of five members to continue an investigation into the death of Hugh H. Call, Shelby WPA worker who was killed Tuesday while at work on the Bellville sewage project, was elected by the Works Progress Union of Richland county at a meeting last night.

The committee was instructed by the President Warren Wheelock to collect sworn statements from eye witnesses of the fatal accident.

Wheelock said the evidence when fully prepared would be presented to County Prosecutor Glenn W. Marriott and would prove negligence on the part of WPA supervisors.

"Legal counsel will be consulted by the union to see what steps should be taken to further the death claims to which Mrs. Call is entitled," Wheelock said.

Wheelock added that the union had received no reply to the telegram to Dr. Carl Watson, Ohio WPA administrator ir which they demanded an "impartial investigation" of the accident. He explained, however, that two safety inspectors had probed the cave-in and taken, what he termed, "conflicting statements" from several of the workers.

Call, father of three children, was killed Tuesday when buried in a cave-in of a ditch in which he was working on a Bellville WPA project.

Mansfield Holds Down 4th Place in Latest Grid Rankings.

By OSCAR RUHL
News-Journal Sports Editor.

THE latest release of high school grid ratings from Columbus places Mansfield in fourth place, with Massillon, first; Youngstown East, second, and Canton McKinley, third. The Youngstown team's Turkey Day setback by Chaney is expected to alter the standings. Sandusky, which holds the distinction of being the only team to defeat the Tygers, is rated well down in the list of 22 teams. In 16th place, to be exact....From 'way out California-way comes a letter from Carl Simon. Carl sends some dope on the Rose Bowl game, but refuses to venture a guess as to the identity of the team which will face California at Pasadena. Our guess is Fordham...Jimmy Aiken, who will do the talking at Madison high's grid dinner Wednesday night, has just been signed to a three-year contract by Akron U. By the way, this Aiken is one of the most interesting talkers you'd care to hear....The Original New York Celtics, Dehnert, Banks, Hickey, et al., want a game in Mansfield, but, unfortunately, can't be accommomdated on the night they wish to appear here.

Not Much of a Record To Beat, Tony.

TONY LONERO takes over the head coaching reins at Ashland college this winter, and he hasn't much of a record to beat in his debut. The Eagles won only two out of 19 games the last cage season . . . In the 48 years Collier's has selected All-Americas, a total of 88 Yale players has been honored. Our own Inwood Smith is one of eight Ohio Staters selected . . . Attendance at high school games soared to record proportions in Ohio this year, according to a United Press survey. It is estimated that approximately 20 per cent more fans attended games this fall than a year ago . . . The Giants have offered Hal Schumacher, Gus Mancuso and Wally Berger for aVn Mungo, but the Dodgers are not interested . . . The Boston Bees didn't have a .300 hitter in their lineup this year . . . "Dutch" Meyer, Texas Christian coach, believes Baylor is a better team than Fordham, but not quite so good as Ohio State . . . The word is out that Oscar Vitt may draft Walter Mails from the San Francisco Seals as a Cleveland coach. He's the same "Duster" to win seven straight games in the Indians' successful pennant drive in 1920.

Navy Springs Leak With Port In Sight.

ONE writer comments on the fact that Navy can gain so readily between the 40-yard lines and then spring a leak with port in sight. The Middies are still a pretty good bet for today...Jack Dempsey is a Fordham football rooter. He even gave a pep talk before one of the games . . . The old Statue of Liberty play in which, as a rule, a player holds the ball back of his head as though to pass but instead lets the ball slip into the grasp of a mate who skids behind him and travels on down the field with the ball, was first used in a Princeton-Rutgers game back in 1889, the first intercollegiate game on record. That's the line some college dopester puts out. You don't have to believe it . . . Minnesota has played fewer games with Ohio State than any other Big Ten team. They get together again in 1939 . . . Roger Hornsby will be at the minor league confab in Milwaukee looking for a job . . . And Dewey Stover will be there, too; probably to get a line on his future from Billy Evans.

De Correvont Packs 'Em In for Charity Today.

CHICAGO —(AP)—A 19-year-old high school boy and two prep football teams battling for charity and a city championship lured an expected crowd of 80,000 persons to the Lakeside Soldier Field Stadium today.

Bill De Correvont was the boy. Austin and Leo were the grid teams and Mayor Edward J. Kelly's Christmas fund was the charitable cause. De Correvont, 170-pound halfback for Austin, city public school league champion, tops all scorers in the nation—prep, collegiate or pro—with 30 touchdowns and six extra points, for a total of 186, in eight games.

The newest league to be organized consists of women employes of the Westinghouse company. The circuit is divided into two divisions, office and shop. Matches are bowled on Tuesdays, Wednesdays and Fridays.

Sandusky May Quit Circuit

Plans to Resign Due to Grid Prowess.

SANDUSKY—Feeling that other members of the Buckeye league might like such action but are too sportsmanlike to request it, Sandusky high school will offer to withdraw from the conference.

This was officially announced today by Karl Whinnery, principal, who said the action would be submitted to league officials at the annual meeting next Friday.

In the past four years, and particularly in the Thanksgiving day game when Sandusky drubbed the Fremont Little Giants 26 to 0, there have been indications, as Principal Whinnery views the matter, that perhaps Sandusky's grid prowess is somewhat too great to make games with other league elevens real contests.

"And it looks," he said, "as though the Blue Streaks will be quite powerful for the next two years at least."

However, if the other schools agree, Principal Whinnery indicated Sandusky may ask to remain in the league for other activities, notably basketball.

The league this year was composed of Tiffin Columbian, Findlay, Fremont and Sandusky.

Due to the number of teams in the Class B league, the games will be sandwiched at the halves. This will make play continuous.

The Class A games Wednesday follows: Park avenue Baptist vs. Central M. E., 7 p. m. Episcopal vs. Mayflower, 7:45; First M. E vs. First Lutheran, 8:30; Temple Emanuel vs. St. Johns, 9:15. St. Pauls draw a bye.

ARMY-NAVY GRID GAME A 'NATURAL' —FOR THOSE WHO LOVE A BIG PARADE

By DILLON GRAHAM

PHILADELPHIA—It must be that everyone loves a parade—else why would 200,000 persons beg to pay $4.40 to see a couple of second-flight teams play football?

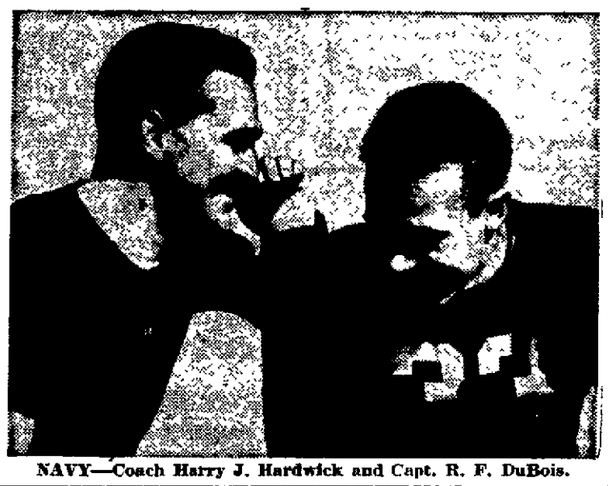
That's the setup for the annual Army-Navy gridiron battle in this city today. The cadets and the sailors have been bumped about considerably this fall. Some of the better teams might "take" both of them the same afternoon.

Never An Empty Seat.

Yet a hundred thousand enthusiasts are grumbling because their checks were returned—the big Philadelphia Municipal stadium seats only 105,000. And it will be chock full an hour before the kickoff when the middies, in their white caps and blue greatcoats, swing onto the field and go through their marching maneuvers. Then the grey-garbed regiment from Army will parade with all its famed military precision.

The service encounter is one of the nation's few grid classics that always is a sell-out. The tickets are gone long before fans have any opportunity to judge from the team's play whether they'll be worth seeing. Most of the tickets go to members of the Army and Navy athletic association, government officials and the Congresional group. A comparatively few thousand are available for the general public.

ARMY—Capt. Jim Isbell and Coach Gar Davidson.



NAVY—Coach Harry J. Hardwick and Capt. R. F. DuBois.

Both have lost three games and the Navy was tied in another. Both beat Columbia but Harvard, which played the sailors a scoreless tie, whipped Army. Navy outplayed Notre Dame but lost on the "breaks," while the Irish looked considerably superior to Army.

Navy Sinking?

Although Navy's record appears a bit better, the sailor's slump last week against a Princeton eleven that had been thoroughly cuffed about seems to leave Army at least an even choice.

A spindle-shanked youngster from Oklahoma, Jim Craig, is the big gun in the Army attack. Husky Lemuel Cooke carried the burden for Navy. Bill Ingram, II, an ace in Navy's triumph's last season, went out early this year with injuries. When he returned Cooke had his job and he hasn't been able to get it back. There's a feeling about, however, that Bill will get the call against Army.

The only other 600 score was a 601 by Barber of the Soft Iron club.

Would Rather Be a Rhodes Scholar Than All-American

It Is Not Unlikely That "Whizzer" White, Colorado Star, Will Be Both.

By HAROLD NIKKEL

DENVER—(U.P.)—Byron (Whizzer) White, a Phi Beta Kappa student who is the nation's leading football scorer, would rather be a Rhodes scholar than an all-America hero, but it was not unlikely today that he would be both.

White finished his collegiate football career Thanksgiving day when he gave the finest individual performance in the history of the Rocky Mountain conference as Colorado defeated Denver university, 34 to 7. Today he was concerned with the real triumph toward which he had aimed his college life—a Rhodes scholarship.

• • •

NATIONAL publicity throughout Colorado's undefeated and untied season apparently had left no mark on the serious 185-pound youth of 20, who wants to become a lawyer.

He was asked today whether he intended to play professional football.

"No," he said. "I don't know anything about it and don't care to discuss it."

His main ambition, he said, was the scholarship.

White's Phi Beta Kappa honors, his straight-A average, the fact that he had played three sports—football, baseball and basketball—and worked his way through school, make his Rhodes scholarship qualifications as bright as his chances of making the all-America teams.

It appeared certain that he would receive several lucrative offers to play professional football. G. A. Richards, president of the Detroit Lions, indicated in a telegram to Gov. Teller Ammons of Colorado eulogizing Earl (Dutch) Clark, rated by many as the greatest football player of all time, that his team would welcome White.

White retired to his home immediately after the game Thursday. His brother, Sam, who also graduated from Colorado university where he was just another football player, is in England on a Rhodes scholarship which accounts in part for Byron's burning desire to win the high scholastic honor.

• • •

AGAINST Denver Thanksgiving day, White scored 22 points by virtue of three touchdown jaunts of 52, 45 and 19 yards and four conversions, passed for two more touchdowns after carrying the ball to scoring position.

White's national scoring mark was compiled on 16 touchdowns, 23 conversion points and the only field goal he attempted. He averaged nine yards every time he carried the ball. Hit punting average was 45 yards and he averaged about 35 per cent completions on his passes.

ONE GUESS IS AS GOOD AS ANOTHER

PASADENA, Cal.—(AP)—Alabama's Crimson Tide has stormed right into the center of the Rose Bowl picture, but University of California officials delayed selection of their Jan. 1 football foe until after Pitt and Fordham make their final bids today.

One guess about the Golden Bears' opponent still is as good as another. But Alabama rates foremost consideration. The Tide capped a glorious season Turkey day with a thrilling 9 to 7 victory over Vanderbilt.

Fordham, whose tie with Pittsburgh is the only blow on either teams' record, meantime flirted openly for the bowl bid. The Rams seemed to be getting serious consideration—provided they get past New York university.

The same goes for Pitt and its game with Duke. But unofficial statements from Pittsburgh said the team is not interested in coming west New Year's day.

Dartmouth, not eliminated from consideration, was reported "snowed" in for the winter.

Alabama, never defeated in four trips to the Bowl, is the only major team with a completely untarnished record. It has won nine straight, rolling up 225 points to opponents' 20.

Unofficial advices from Alabama said the tide is "uninterested" in the New Year's game.

Ken Priestley, California's graduate manager and key man of its immediate athletic plans, is due here preparatory to announcing the Golden Bears' bowl foe.

Other bowl games about the country, including New Orleans' Sugar, Dollars' Cotton and Miami's Orange, were politely ignored as the Rose Bowl organization prepared to entertain another sellout crowd here, regardless of who California selects.

Torrid Title Chase Looms In Richland County League

Championship Ontario Team Hit by Graduation; Madison May Provide Opposition; Lucas Shows Strength.

By CHARLES MARTIN

WITH the crack Ontario quintet, which last season raced to the county league and tournament and district championships without suffering a setback, wrecked by graduation, a close, hard-fought race is anticipated in the Richland county basketball league this season.

Two games have already been played in the circuit, but hostilities do not become heavy until next week-end when Ontario's defending champions entertain the fast-stepping Lucas combine, Union (formerly Weller) invades Butler and the Madison Rams move into the Bellville camp. All three games are on tap Friday night.

In the games played to date the surprise Lucas club has registered triumphs over Union, 33 to 27, and over Lexington, 27 to 23.

At Ontario, Coach Orville Kibler is attempting to build a successor to the brilliant 1936-37 team. Kibler does not have any illusions about the task which confronts him. Although the talent available this year is promising, Ontario will hardly possess the strength it did last winter.

Teams of the type which represented the Springfield township school last winter are not built every year.

Loses Stellar Performers.

The lettermen Kibler has lost through graduation read like a Who's Who in county basketball. They are Bob Bogantz, Howard Patterson, Bob Elliott, Nick Zeigler, Mervin Taylor and Phil Wright.

Kibler, whose team was eliminated in the state tournament by Upper Arlington, Class B champion, has two lettermen from that powerful club to form the nucleus for the 1937-38 edition. The two lettermen are Matt Hager, center, and Dick Casad, who alternated at the pivot position and forward.

The list of promising youngsters from which Kibler will pick the club are Bob Fink, Sam Miller, Carl Laubscher, Al Sauer, Henry Hager, Henry Bookwalter, Dave Prion, Jack Hannan, T. D. Hudson, Ben Miller, Richard Bemiller, Eugent Sowers, Dick Cassel and Orie Rush.

Madison high, runner-up in the county league and tournament last year, will have three veterans back to start the campaign. If Coach Al Fendrick can develop two of the newcomers to fill the posts vacated by graduates, the Rams are expected to have one of the strongest clubs in the league. Kenny Lockhart and Ed Harmon were the graduates.

Three Vets Return.

Members returning from last year's team are Captain Gene Harmon, Bill Wilkins and Joe Miller. Among the newcomers are Doug DeNero, Bob Wilkins, Mel Harner, Bill Moritz, Bob Mathews, Gerald Hershey and Dave Weimer.

The Madison squad is small, but in practice session has shown fast and clever pass work.

Gil Weikert's Lucas quintet, built around three lettermen, Capt. Floyd Banks, Robert Crawford and John Crawford, and a newcomer, Tom Greulich, a transfer from John Marshall of Cleveland, has developed into a smooth-working machine.

Greulich and Crawford have been the offensive stars so far. The former Cleveland boy has accounted for 27 of the team's total points in the first two games, while Crawford was the big menace in the Union tilt, scoring 17 points.

Lexington Promising

Lexington, which early this week dropped its opening game to Lucas, gives promise of developing into a strong club with five veterans back. Richard Rule, all-county center last year, is the main cog of the Lexington offense. The other members returning are Harry Chalfant, Morton Hugenard, Clarence Luedy and Ernie France. The regulars who graduated were Harry France, Bob Clever, Jay Kisling and Bob Them.

Coach John N. Rees will round out the team with such promising youngsters as Kenneth Clever, Wayne Queen and Hoy Ryan.

With four lettermen back from last season's outfit, Union, although defeated in its initial county league appearance, is developing and may prove to be a factor in the championship race. The regulars back are Lawrence Bowser, Eugene Baker, James Purdy and Mervin Oswalt. Gene Clingan and Leland Kissel were lost through graduation.

The Butler Knights stack up as one of the more dangerous outfits in the circuit again this season. The Knights lost the sensational Glenn Miller through graduation, and his loss, will be felt greatly, Coach M. L. Steorns admits. However, Stearns has hopes of the development of a number of newcomers.

Among the players figuring in Stearns' plans are Kenny Miller, a brother of Glenn; Ward, Williams, Wilson, Bowman, King, Thompson, Hall, Arnold and Boals.

The Knights won over Perrysville, 42 to 24, in their opener last week.

No information regarding the playing personnel of Bellville has been received. Bellville bowed to Adario in a non-league opener a week ago.

The league schedule follows:

Dec. 7—Lucas at Ontario; Union at Butler; Madison at Bellville.
Dec. 10—Lucas at Bellville; Butler at Madison; Ontario at Lexington.
Dec. 11—Bellville at Union.
Dec. 17—Lucas at Butler.

Mexican Star To Face Blake

Rodriquez Signed for Match On Wednesday Card.

The latest entry in the world's light heavyweight championship wrestling tournament which is now being staged here is Jose Rodriquez, the Mexican 175-pounder. Rodriquez will make his first start in the competition Wednesday night when he appears in the Armory to help headline another bang-up tournament program.

Rodriquez has been signed to a contract to meet Bobby Blake, rugged little Columbus blond, over the two best out of three falls route with an hour and a half time limit.

The Mexican star since his last appearance here last spring has been campaigning in the far west and has been ranging from the Pacific Coast, into Texas and Oklahoma wrestling territory.

Now making Chicago his headquarters the Mexican boy is out after all the leaders of the 175-pound division and will be out to put Blake on the sidelines Wednesday night.

Matchmaker Nolan is now seeking another match in the tournament to help headline next Wednesday night's show.

Beats Pastor, Tackles Farr

Mann Hands Out Whipping In Listless Fight.

NEW YORK — (UP) — Nathan Mann, New Haven, Conn., heavyweight, and Tommy Farr, British challenger who stayed 15 rounds against Joe Louis, will fight a 10-round match in Madison Square Garden Jan. 21, Promoter Mike Jacobs announced today.

Mann earned the shot by beating Bob Pastor, the former New York university football player, in an uninteresting 10-round bout in the Garden last night.

The Connecticut boy tried to make a fight of it all the way, but he was handicapped by Pastor's continuous holding and back-peddling, the same tactics he used in staying 10 rounds with Louis early this year.

The United Press score sheet gave Mann five rounds, Pastor two and called three even.

A hard right hook to the jaw sent Pastor spinning to the canvas in the first round, but he got up before the count started and hung on until the bell. In the fourth, fifth and sixth, Mann rocked Pastor to his heels, but could not put him away.

The association is supported by the Community fund and the nurses serve without charge patients who are unable to pay for the nursing service.

Machado had eluded arrest for more than three years.

HAVANA, Cuba.—(U.P.)—Secretary of State Juan Remos said today that the Cuban government would "sustain the charges made against former President Gerardo Machado in 1934.

Remos asserted, however, that extradition proceedings were "completely in the hands of the Cuban embassy in Washington and United States authorities."

He said the government had taken no specific action in connection with Machado's arrest in New York City.

TWO TAKEN TO STATE PRISONS

Shelby Man, Mansfielder Begin Terms in Columbus.

Pose Wade, 42, Shelby, under a one to 20-year sentence in Ohio penitentiary for manslaughter, and David Williams, 28, Mansfield, sentenced to 120 days in the Columbus workhouse for assault and battery, were taken to Columbus by Sheriff E. P. Long yesterday to begin their terms.

Wade was sentenced by Common Pleas Judge C. H. Huston after he pleaded guilty to a manslaughter indictment growing out of the death of his 18-year-old son, Woodrow, in an auto accident three months ago near Shelby. Wade admitted being intoxicated when he permitted the car he was driving to skid and turn over in the highway, fatally injuring his son.

Williams is under sentence from municipal court.

'Moving Mountain' Crumbles

Part of Los Angeles' "moving mountain," a two-million-ton mass of earth and rocks, tumbled down on scenic Riverside drive last night, breaking power lines and surrounding several buildings and debris.

AMERICA HIGHLY ESTEEMED BY BRITISHERS, SURVEY REVEALS

LONDON — (I N S) — America was revealed today as the foreign nation held in the highest regard by Britishers.

Cavalcade, British weekly newsmagazine, published the results of a poll on several subjects of topical interest.

To the question, "What foreign nation do you like the best?" readers answered by placing the United States first with 37 per cent of the vote recorded, and Germany third with 15 per cent.

The remaining 20 per cent of the votes were scattered among other European nations.

Commented Cavalcade:

"This is a case where familiarity has not bred contempt. Through American films, publications, Britain possibly knows more about the U. S. than it knows about any other country. While the American invasion has been attacked, feared, the poll suggests it has also won friends.

"The U. S. has not the same knowledge of Britain, but returns the affection with even greater force. A poll on the same question in the States placed Britain first with 55 per cent, five times the rate for France.

"Although the National Government is extremely friendly to the U. S., the greatest support came from the followers of the (Labor) Opposition. Strong support came also from people over 30, which contradicts the belief that fast American life is shocking to sedate (British) elders."

HEN MOTHERS CATS

YANCEYVILLE, N. C. —(U.P.)— An ambitious hen on the farm of Mrs. John Buck, of Locust Hill, has established a protectorate over a family of cats. At feeding time for the litter, the hen spreads her wings over the mother cat as well as kittens.

THEATER

FILM NOTES: — Though she's employed at another studio, Katherine De Mille appears regularly at a Paramount pay window —to pick up Husband Anthony Quinn's check . . . The music publishers credit Gracie Allen with being well up among the 10 best song pluggers on the air . . . Margaret Tallichet spent months trying to lose her southern accent, and now appears likely to be a principal of "Gone With The Wind." . . . John Boles, now co-starring in "Romance in The Dark" with Gladys Swarthout, served as an American spy during the World war.

"A Damsel In Distress."

Love, lyrics and laughter are combined in Fred Astaire's new starring vehicle, "A Damsel in Distress," the film version of a P. G. Wodehouse story, opening as a midnight attraction at the Ohio Saturday. A complicated romance between a highly-publicised American dancer and a titled English girl trying to avoid a loveless marriage comprises the theme of the story. These factors all bring about many comedy situations which are handled by Gracie Allen and George Burns, Astaire's publicity agents. Joan Fontaine heads the featured cast with Constance Collier and Ray Noble in the supporting roles. "The Awful Truth," co-starring Irene Dunne and Cary Grant is the current feature.

* * *

"Ebb Tide."

The first sea story filmed in technicolor, "Ebb Tide," the screen adoption of a story by Robert Louis Stevenson and Lloyd Osbourne, will grace the silver screen at the Madison theater starting Sunday. The film tells the story of four strangely assorted lives that are entangled on a little south sea island as a result of a death outside the group: and are separated at last by violence and murder in a forsaken trading post by a sadistic. Ray Milland and Frances Farmer supply the romantic interest, with Oscar Homolka, Lloyd Nolan and Harry Fitzgerald in the supporting roles. "Submarine D-1," featuring Pat O'Brien and George Brent is the feature through today.

* * *

"Living on Love."

A distinctive type of screen story is offered in the new comedy-romance, "Living On Love," opening at the Majestic theater Sunday. James Dunne and Whitney Bourne are cast in the featured roles. The romance is based on a unique situation, in which the two principals, farced to share the same room alternately and developing a bitter hatred of one another as a consequence, fall in love without knowing they are room-mates. "Country Fair," with J. Farrell McDonald and Frizzy Knight, completes the entertainment. The two features closing today are "Thunder in The City," and "Hollywood Roundup."

* * *

"The Road Back."

"The Road Back," with Richard Cromwell, John Knight, Barbara Reed and Slim Summerville, affords the screen fare at the Ritz starting Sunday for three days. The film, adopted from the novel by Erich Maria Remarque, tells the story of the return of the Germans after the armistice. What they saw when they returned to their homes, their wives and sweethearts who didn't wait for their return, and the battle as Germany tried to regain her feet without a leader. Supporting the feature players are Noah Berry, jr., Andy DeVine and Louise Fazenda. Jack Oakie and Ann Sothern in "Super Sleuth," and "Singing Buckaroo," will end tonight.

STUCCO WALLS CALL FOR BEST WORKMANSHIP

Failure of Walls of This Nature Usually Due to 'Cuts' In Materials.

People's preferences in coverings for the outside walls of their homes always will vary. One will be satisfied with nothing but the old New England standby, clapboards, or perhaps shingles. Another will consider nothing but brick, while there always are a few who figure that so-called "novelty siding" of one kind or another will provide exactly what they want.

Among those not mentioned above, it will be noted, are people who have a definite liking for stucco. Somehow stucco proves to be the one siding which provides certain effects, or fits in most effectively with certain landscaping plans, they believe. Others may try to interest these advocates of stucco in something else but it is seldom that a stucco enthusiast can be talked into accepting a substitute of any kind.

Planned Building.

Many of these stucco "fans" never have owned a home, but have entertained plans for building eventually and these plans firmly stipulate stuccoed outside walls. They may be open to conviction on certain details, even to the general plan of a house, but it usually proves impossible to switch them from stucco to brick, clapboards or shingles, for they are too thoroughly sold on the idea of stucco to be moved by rival sales talks. Even the arguments in favor of asbestos siding usually leave enthusiasts unshaken in their determination to use nothing else but cement stucco.

Contractors specializing in work of this character are authorities for the statement, however, that many of these people who are so thoroughly "sold" on stucco never go to the bother of finding out just what the requirements are for obtaining an enduring stucco surface. Apparently they figure that one stucco surface is much like any other, whereas there is all the difference in the world, especially in lasting qualities. A well anchored stucco in which the best cement obtainable has been used by workmen who are thoroughly compeent to handle such materials, should and probably will last indefinitely. It is only necessary to seek out a few splendid homes which have withstood New England's exacting weather conditions for 20 years or more to be convinced of this.

This House Adaptable to Any Community

By CENTRAL PRESS

In excellent taste is this five-room house with a studio living room. It is a home that will adapt itself to any community.

This living room in the "wing" of the house has the stairs at one end with a balcony which overlooks the room. The ceiling of this room extends right up to the roof and there is a fireplace at one end. There are built-in bookcases on either side of the front windows.

A dining room, dining nook and kitchen complete the first floor plan. The dining room may be generally used for library or second sitting room, as the dining nook takes care of most of the meals.

On the second floor are two bedrooms and bath, the master bedroom having two clothes closets.

The total cubic contents of this house are 23,900 cubic feet. The size of the main building is 35 feet six inches by 30 feet six inches; size over all, 38 feet six inches by 33 feet.

FLY DISLIKES MEDIUM BLUE

The common house fly will hibernate very shortly and nothing much will be heard from it again before the first warm weather of next spring. Nevertheless, its influence will merely be dormant and the spring of 1938 will find its descendants inside the house again in force.

Flies can be controlled and all but permanently expelled from a home if a few not too expensive precautions are taken—and they should be taken, it might be added, during the dormant season. One of the principal places to be treated for control of house flies is the basement and the best material to accomplish this with is either water or oil paint—preferably a medium blue paint.

SKIMPY WIRING PROVES COSTLY TO HOME OWNER

Owners of Older Dwellings Face Difficult Task When Changes Are Necessary.

Electrical engineers tell us that when an electric circuit is overloaded the cost of just about every operation depending upon that electric line is proportionately more than it would be if the wiring facilities were sufficient to supply for all needs without strain. When a new house is built there really is no excuse for overloaded circuits, because extra circuits cost but little extra to install. They should be so planned that they will take care of the normal increases in the use of electricity for the next 10 years.

With an old house, however, the problem is more serious, because not one-tenth of the present uses of electricity had been anticipated when the wiring for such a house was installed. As a result, two or three circuits are called upon to take care of needs which rightfully should have had the benefit of several additional circuits.

Writes Article.

Eugene Raskin, nationally known architect, has some interesting things to say on this subject in an issue of Better Homes & Gardens. He stresses the handicap confronting owners of homes built a generation or so ago, but adds that the owners of homes built recently also may find themselves embarrassed by a lack of adequate facilities in a few years. With photo electric devices continuously being perfected for practical home use, with television promising to be something more than a mere theory and "numerous other modern miracles" destined to add ease and richness to home life, he warns that wiring systems now being installed are likely to prove insufficient to meet the added loads which are bound to be imposed as year succeeds year. It is all a matter of installing a wiring system large and flexible enough to fulfill every demand which, in the most liberal sense, will be made upon it.

"If your toaster takes three minutes instead of two," Mr. Raskin explains, "it costs you, in electric current, one and one-half times what it should. Continue this calculation to include your other electrical equipment and you'll come to the inevitable conclusion that an under par wiring system is a most unsatisfying extravagance. You actually pay more for the privilege of receiving inferior electrical performance."

SAFETY STEP

The 1938 truck exhibit at the automobile show in New York's Grand Central Palace featured colors selected for safety. Recent tests indicate that orange can be seen on the road more clearly and at a greater distance than any other color. Red is a close second. On the smaller trucks, light gray, tan and buff seem to have supplanted the darker tones popular a few years ago.

DOUBLE PAINT COAT PREFERRED

Some people who claim to be thoroughly versed in the choice and uses of paints would have us believe that if a house is painted once in every two years and with paint prepared in a certain manner, only one coat of paint is required to do a satisfactory job.

Almost invariably experts subscribe to the trade tenet that two coats of paint applied every four years will give much better service than the practice followed by some people of applying a single coat every two years.

INSPECT DRAINS

Basement Outlets Should Be Guarded Against Gases.

The fall and winter months are the danger season for the home, warns Modern Home institute.

The average housewife sends the laundry out in cold weather in preference to laundering at home in cold, drafty basements. This means that the basement drain trap, sole guard against the entry of sewer gas into the home, seldom sees water during the fall and winter season, an institute survey, discovered.

The careful householder should inspect the basement drain at least twice a month to see that the water seal is intact.

THE STATE vs. ELNA JEPSON

By NANCY BARR MAVITY

(Copyright 1937)

CHAPTER XXV

Elna glared at him. "You suggest that I deliberately use my health as a trick—that I plan a lie with my soul, and weigh the pros and cons. I have made my own decision. I will do my best, and it won't suit anybody. I have no choice there. But I have a choice here. I am going back to the girls at once. That's where I belong by rights. Why should I accept any different treatment from theirs?"

Dr. Grayson rose to his feet. "My girl, for once I can say you are right. I will send a prescription to Mrs. Nielsen, which I order you to take for the time being. Do with the newspapers as you think best, except do not take them too seriously. They can make much of what you say, but if you say nothing, they are not so grand after all."

The old gray man arose. A moment later Mrs. Nielsen returned. The suitcase in her hand, Elna said, "Shoot me in with the girls quickly, please."

Dr. Grayson was lingering at the outer door. "Here is one more piece of advice from a medical man. When you find pride is not enough—and sometimes it is not enough—just try to remember that not even Oscar Jepson was quite all of God!" His broad, impish grin was the last she saw of him.

* * *

"I suppose I'm doing this wrong, to attack you all at once, just as I've done everything wrong, almost, according to the results. I'm waiting here for trial for murder. Draw away from me for that if you feel like it. But I'm going to stay here, and I'd rather be Elna, one of the girls."

"Oh, you'll be scooting back to Mother Nielsen to a special room quick enough," said the sullen-faced, black-haired girl in the corner.

"No, I won't." Elna's sudden anger flared. "What have I done that you should be mean to me? But whatever any of you do, I'm going to stay, and if I go to my trial a beaten pulp, why, it was my own fault for getting into this jam."

This tirade had an unexpected effect. The stalwart, black-haired girl rose to her feet. "Lay off Elna, you bums, hear me? She ain't no social worker—she just ain't had no trainin', see?"

* * *

Secretly the girls enjoyed the excitement that seemed to accompany Elna's every move, and were glad to have her back. Elna glanced down, and noticed that Vera had taken her suitcase and laid it on the seventh bed. On top lay a letter. Elna strolled over.

"Came last night," Vera whispered. "Your boy friend told Bill to wait, and came back after a while with this."

Slowly Elna opened the envelope. Inside was a thin sheet of paper covered with carbon typewriting, with a few lines scribbled at the end. She saw the familiar signature of the president of the university.

"Dear Miss Jepson," she read. "It is with great regret that I must dismiss you from your present post with the university as of this date.

"This drastic step is taken solely in the interests of the university, and naturally, with no thought of prejudicing your present affairs. You will understand any possible connection of your name with this institution under present circumstances would be disastrous."

Underneath a few lines were scribbled in blue pencil: "It wasn't my fault. May Prexy fry in hell. He was scared as a rabbit and had the copies all typed ready for the press. I argued for him to take the line of your letter, but you know what state appropriations are. Call on me when all is over, and I'll do my best to find an opening for you. Sorry—but that's cold comfort, I know."

* * *

Elna leaned her forehead against the barred window, the leter dangling from her hand. They had not given her a chance to resign, even. The whole power of the state university had set itself against her, a laboratory worker, before she was even on trial.

Vera drew her down on the bed, chafing her cold hands, one of which still clutched the crumpled letter.

"What's in your letter, dear? Boy friend let you down?"

"No." Vera waited. "I've merely lost my job." She flung the letter to the foot of the bed, where Vera shamelessly read it. A small pale girl reached across to Vera who, with a long look, surrendered the letter. Elna still gazed blindly at the wall. Suddenly she was swung around by her shoulders and a small freckled face gazed at her.

"I'm Rose. And I know, I mean really know. How many girls in this room do you suppose have lost their jobs just when they thought they might go straight? A woman customer accused me of having stolen her purse. She identified me positively. All I could say was that I didn't do it, and the manager dismissed me without notice. It is tough, I know it is, kid, but it isn't any tougher for you than it was for the rest of us."

* * *

The last sentences penetrated. No, it wasn't any tougher for her than for the rest of them. That was what she had forgotten.

"Right, let's celebrate misfortune, it comes so much oftener than Christmas!" Her gaiety sounded shrill and strained. She tugged at the straps of her suitcase.

"Gather round, everybody." She pulled out the large box of powder. "I know we've all missed it so, and I think it will be grand to share. Take what you want now, and more when you need it. I haven't had anything to share before." There was a scramble for boxes.

"Quiet, girls," Rose warned with a glance at the door.

The drug addict, roused by the movements around her, leaped from her bed, rushed through the group and grabbed for the powder box with trembling fingers, screaming, "You cheaters! You had it all the time!"

Rose pushed her roughly aside. "I'm handling this," she said. Her voice was low, but distinct. "Vera, hide that powder. Elna, put your suitcase under your bed, and go into one of your trances. The rest of you get rid of those boxes in their usual places and then act as you like."

As she spoke, she had half held the girl, murmuring to her between her words, rubbing the twitching muscles. By the time Mrs. Gorham stamped into the room, the addict was already quieter under Rose's long stroking hands.

"What's going on in here?" Mrs. Gorham demanded.

Rose spoke at once. "She was sleeping restlessly. Suddenly she jumped up and began raving about cheaters and dope or something. I think it was just a nightmare. She has none of the symptoms of an extra dose. But Dr. Grayson asked me to have you call him if anything at all unusual happened."

"It's true." The girl's voice rose again. "I saw it, piles of it; the girls were all grabbing after it and then wouldn't let me have it. It was there!" She pointed to Elna's bed.

"Well, I'm not a dope addict," Elna met Mrs. Gorham's eyes sharply," as any fool would know."

"Pardon me, Mrs. Gorham, but Dr. Grayson asked to be called at once." Rose gave Elna a warning glance to silence. "If Gussie has had an extra dose at this period the effects might be serious. I should be obliged to say that you had disobeyed his direct instructions."

* * *

Mrs. Gorham trotted off to telephone. Returning, she pushed ahead of Dr. Grayson to Rose's bed and began, "This girl has got hold of it again, doctor, through one of the girls, I think. Shall I search the room?"

"You'll be quiet and get out of the way," Dr. Grayson ordered. "while I examine the patient." The girls smiled covertly.

"What happened, Rose?" he asked. "From my own observation and examination this patient has had no narcotics. But you know that this delusion is very unusual at this state?"

"Yes, doctor. Do you want me to tell you what happened?"

"Why not?" The doctor's voice was soft and persuasive.

"This involves the breaking of a jail rule. Gussie went into a wingding because she caught sight of some face powder and thought it was snow. It was not snow."

Dr. Grayson lifted Rose's hand and sniffed at one of the fingers. "Quite right. Very nice powder. Quite harmless. Against the rules—who brought it in?"

"Medical conference?" Rose asked warily.

"Medical—though slightly stretched."

"Not stretched at all, as you know well enough. No one else in this room would buy powder as expensive as that—don't forget that even if I'm a shoplifter, I don't patronize the chain stores."

Dr. Grayson let the bitterness storm and fade in her face. He merely waited.

"You could have got that girl in fine shape for the trial easily. She came back here, not for any grandstand play, but because she found out she wasn't any special person any more. This life may break her. If it does, she isn't worth saving."

"It's a little more complex," Dr. Grayson said, bending over his black bag. "Give her a tablespoon of this tonight. I prefer she should have a good sleep. Talk to her in any way you like. RAIL ANALYSTS ENCOURAGED BY STEEL PURCHASE

Southern Carriers Place Order For 60,000 Tons, Largest Since 1931.

NEW YORK —(AP)— Shares moved ahead fractions to a point or more in early dealings in the stock market today.

Blocks of as much as 3,000 shares changed hands in an active opening.

Cheering o rail share analysts was the report a group of southern carriers had lpaced the largest single combined steel rail order since 1931, with specifications calling for 60,000 tons. On the other hand, preliminary figures for October indicated a sharp drop in railroad net operating income under the comparable period last year.

The more than seasonal decline in freight carloadings last week had largely been discounted in advance in most board rooms, as had the sharp falling off in automobile output. Statistics over the next few weeks will be studied carefully to determine the extent of the recession in holiday trade.

day but had lost half of it gambling and that his wife did not know it.

He admitted, police said, taking a gun, which he had hidden in the house and putting it in his pocket while his wife was in the basement.

He was identified at the police station immediately after his capture by the filling station operator.

Police identification records showed that Lett had been sentenced to the reformatory in 1931 to serve from 1 to 15 years for assault with intent to rob. He was paroled three years later and was granted his final release May 1, 1935.

Police said he had been married in Kentucky in 1927 but was divorced from his wife immediately after his realese from the reformatory. He married his present wife in 1935 and they have one son. He also has one child by his former marriage, police said.

DEATH CLAIMS BALLYHOO ACE

town youth with an urge to publicize the activities of broncho busters, bearded ladies, sword swallowers and trapeze artists. He began as press agent for the Pawnee Bill show at $20 a week, and a year later joined the Buffalo Bill wild west show.

Eleven years later he signed up with the Ringling Brothers, remained with them a year and then became Barnum and Bailey's ace ballyhoo man. When the two circuses combined, Fellows kept his job.

Fellows probably knew more newspapermen than any press agent in the country. Whenever he visited a newspaper office to "sell" a yarn, he greeted editors and reporters by their first names and asked about their wives and children.

"Braggadocio barred, brother," was how fellow might begin a personal recommendation of the current circus. "Bigger and better beyond belief. Better broncho busters, better bounding bayaders, better bipeds, bigger bands blaring best since Barnum, believe Zozo!"

"There's no gypping, no confidence games, no short changing, and you see in the tent just what the advertisements promise," he often said.

ACCUSE BOY, 14, IN DAD'S DEATH

Sheriff Says Youth Hit Father With Lump of Coal.

LAWRENCEVILLE, Ill.—(U.P.)—Fourteen-year-old Marion Hensley was held today on a charge of killing his father, Steven, 77, because the elderly man criticized a neighbor's singing.

Marion was seated at the dinner table with his father, mother and sister, when the father remarked about the efforts of a neighbor to vocalize the scales and master trills.

Marion took exception and an argument followed. The two went into the yard of their home and the youth began to hurl lumps of coal at his father, Sheriff Hayes Bayle said. One struck the elderly man in the head and he dropped dead.

But for the present the Japanese contented themselves with the telegraph and radio facilities and the postal system. It was not believed they would take over the cables, owned by foreign companies, but they planned to occupy cable company offices and handle acceptance and delivery of questionable messages, a function exercised by the Chinese communications ministry.

"We hope for the correct attitude and co-operation of the Chinese communications personnel," a Japanese embassy spokesman said.

"We do not desire to be severe . . . but in case of necessity and to safeguard military activities we may have to take the necessary steps toward a censorship, but we hope not."

Not That It Matters

—By JANE WILLIAMS

ONE must admire the expeditious and effective manner in which the English courts deal with libel actions. Their laws on libel are not so involved as ours, and do not deal with the intent of the writer. It is merely a question of whether a printed statement is true or not true, and it falls upon the writer to prove his statements. In the case of Geoffrey Dennis, author of "Coronation Commentary," whose two concluding chapters on Edward and the woman he married caused a furore in England but were not even mildly sensational over here, the English court made short work of it this week.

When called upon to prove his statement that the American woman was the king's mistress before she became his duchess, Dennis was left stranded high and dry without a shred of evidence and not only received a bawling out that reverberated over the jolly little island, but must pay a sum far exceeding the profits from his book. Something of the sort happened several years ago when an author thought it would be jolly to tear Mr. Gladstone down from his pedestal.

And every English author is careful about the way in which he handles the name of Queen Victoria.

Author Dennis should have come to America to write the last two chapters of his book.

IT Can't Happen Here" seems to be the conclusion on all of those street corner and across-the-luncheon table discussions of the Davey-For-President possibility. Few persons are worried, although many are scornful of the idea.

The possibility keeps insistently raising its head in the daily news as the result of the governor's encounters with labor. Fantastic? To those who do not admire the governor nor his administration, it is more than fantastic—but it could happen.

Calvin Coolidge rose to national prominence and importance because of locking horns with strikers when he was governor of Massachusetts, and he profited politically thereby.

If the Roosevelt sun should set before 1940, Ohio's governor would stand out as the only Democratic governor who openly defied the president and members of the president's political family. Yes, indeedy, it could happen here.

There are quite a few of us here in Ohio who hope that it won't.

* * *

CRITICIZING President Roosevelt for inconsequential mistakes in grammar in times like these is the height of something or other. A college president—a woman—is in a dither because the president miss-com-fuddles his "shall" and "will" in extemporaneous speeches, and uses "as" when he should use "like." As who doesn't?

The lady reminds me of a sparrow on a telegraph wire, chattering its silly little complaints while the news of wars, revolution, disaster and death is flashed to the world under its feet.

* * *

ERNEST W. STAFFORD, Loudonville, R. F. D. 1, writes me that the Copus monument and little graveyard, of which I wrote last week, are not in Richland county, but a short distance from the Richland-Ashland line in the latter county It is nine tenths of a mile south of the Charles Mill dam and four miles northeast of Lucas.

What interested me most in his letter was the fact that the inscription on the monument (one side of which is in memory of Johnny Appleseed) is almost undecipherable now and the little cemetery where the massacred pioneer's wife and family lie is forgotten and the monuments broken down and weather-beaten beyond identification.

Isn't there some patriotic society that could be interested in a project to restore the markers? They carry the history of the settling of this part of Ohio in their ruins.

DOTS AND DASHES: My Weak Moment, Charlie McCarthy, will have a degree conferred upon him by Northwestern university—a doctor of Innuendo and Snappy Comeback. I'm so proud of the Diminutive Fellow. If only Donald Duck could be made Doctor of Quack! . . . All of you lonely souls who long for a house pet will be happy to know that buffalo are cheap this year. You can buy a two-year-old from the government for $60. . . . Fingerprint experts are going to have something to worry about in the future. It has just been learned that the Dionne quints have finger prints and foot prints that are almost identical. . . . "Disappointed" writes that she is frightfully disappointed when I don't answer criticisms of this column that appear in the Letters From Readers. The reason is that this column is not a controversial one but is just one person's ideas and comments. Letters from Readers are ditto . . . A real Thanksgiving day would be one in which a person could rejoice and be thankful that he had sense enough not to stuff and gorge himself with food. . . .

WHEN a Mansfield concern sent a statement to a local lad in New York City for $1.98 "on account," he filled in after those two words with this ode to "on account of"—

On account of the cost of bacon and beans
And the roof we have over our heads,
On account of high taxes and very slow taxies
And Mazie who dusts and makes beds,
On account of the market, and business (it's rotten)
And F. D., who makes terrible laws,
On account of all these, plus extravagant "she's"
Please "charge"—on account of because!

Cities Back Early Job Insurance Benefits

ASSEMBLY TO WEIGH RELIEF PLANS MONDAY

Municipal Officials Agree to Part of Davey's Program But Fight Other Proposals.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Officials of most of Ohio's major cities agreed today that Gov. Martin L. Davey's plan for speeding payment of unemployment insurance benefits would help the relief problem by caring for newly unemployed persons but their opposition to other features of his general relief program remained the chief problem confronting the special legislative session.

The governor issued a call for prompt approval of the plan, at the session opening Monday, after the federal social security board agreed that Ohio's law could be amended so that benefits would be payable beginning Jan. 1, 1938, instead of Jan. 1, 1939 as at present.

Cautions State.

The board cautioned that requirements of the federal social security act must be met, but Davey said at his home in Kent:

"It will be a hard job but it can be done. I am deeply gratified. Quick action will be necessary on the part of the legislature in order that we can complete the set-up for payment of compensation by Jan. 1."

Said the board in its statement yesterday:

"Judging from experience of other states in establishing administrative machinery and procedures necessary to pay benefits, it is doubtful if any state could, without several months preparation, develop methods for this purpose which could meet the requirements of the social security act that administration * * * must be such as is found by the social security board to insure full payment of unemployment compensation when due."

MAPS QUICK START

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— The Ohio unemployment compensation commission can get its machinery in shape to begin insurance benefit payments by Jan. 1, as proposed by Governor Davey, although the task will be difficult, Chairman Charles S. Leasure said today.

Eighteen state employment offices in 16 counties, due to be transferred Jan. 1 from the department of industrial relations to the unemployment compensation commission, will be the nucleus of the administrative set-up, Leasure pointed out.

For complete administration of the law, he said, the employment offices will have to be increased from 65 to 90. Each industrial county will have to have one or more such offices, to handle applications for benefits and investigate applicants' claims.

TAX FUNDS DROP IN 87 COUNTIES

Lorain Only Subdivision in State Reporting Increase In Sales Levy Revenues.

COLUMBUS — (UP) — Lorain county today remained the only county of the state's 88 which reported a greater sale of prepaid sales tax receipts for 1937 than for 1936, State Treasurer Clarence H. Knisley said.

This year's collections for that county were $623,744 against $623,350 for the same date last year.

"However," Knisley said, "this margin is small and it is our prediction that before another week Lorain county will be numbered with the other 87 who have shown income less than last year's.

The exemption of the tax on foods has caused a general decrease of approximately 11 per cent in the state, the treasurer said.

Richland county, which for several months this year showed an increase in tax receipts, showed a drop of 5.67 per cent for the first 10 months of the year, while the drop for October was 28.12 per cent. Total sales tax collections for 10 months in Richland county this year were $472,744, as compared to $501,201 for the same period last year.

SAYS LOYALISTS WILL WIN WAR

Anti-Nazi Describes Experiences In Spanish Civil War.

His experiences while with the International brigade in the Spanish civil war were related by Ludwig Renn, anti-Nazi German lecturer and writer, in a talk last night at Germania hall.

Renn predicted that the Loyalist forces in Spain will defeat the Insurgents despite the influx of Fascist soldiers from Germany and Italy.

Renn spoke to approximately 125 people in his appearance here under the sponsorship of the Mansfield Liederkranz society and the Friends of the Abraham Lincoln Brigade which is supporting the Americans fighting for the Loyalist cause in Spain. His address was in German.

CINCY REGISTERS JOBLESS AS 2,000 REPLY TO 'CHALLENGE'

CINCINNATI— (AP) —Registration of unemployed who turned out to help City Manager C. O. Sherrill put down the saying that "you can't get people to work" was continued by a corps of welfare workers today.

The welfare staff was swamped as 2,000 men applied for city-created jobs yesterday. Sherrill promised that jobs would be provided "for every man who is willing to work and is eligible for relief."

Welfare Director Omar H. Caswell said that 814 in the lineup were registered and he expected 500 others to report today. He said records showed that 270 of that number are on relief rolls, 402 formerly were receiving relief and 103 were asking for aid for the first time.

The throng of idle men—and a few women—formed a march to the workhouse three miles distant when they overrun the downton relief headquarters. Others hailed taxicabs to be at the head of the list.

Eighteen were given jobs immediately and Caswell expected the assignments would be completed in a week.

Sherrill said the men would be given odd jobs, including wrecking abandoned buildings, crushing stone and hauling dirt.

The men will be paid by vouchers on a 50-cent hourly basis, which Sherill said might be revised to provide $31.50 monthly for a family of three and up to $75 monthly for an unemployed man wih eight dependents.

Sherill asserted that a man receiving no money "will have plenty of incentive to go out and seek work where he will have cash coming to him."

J. W. LUTZ DIES

Native of Richland Stricken At Hospital Friday.

John William Lutz, 79, of 305 West Fourth street, died in the General hospital Friday following a brie fillness. Born in Richland county, July 14, 1858, Mr. Lutz spent most of his life in Wyandot county, and returned to this vicinity six years ago. He was a carpenter contractor for more than 40 years.

Up and Down THE STREET

When you want oranges, the way to get 'em is to buy a grove of 'em. So figures Keith (Buehler's Market) Frary, who has done exactly that. The output of the whole grove near Cocoa, Fla., will be divided between the market here and two others his company operates. The first shipment arrived a week ago (Frary personally escorted 'em to town) and another one's due Monday.

A routine police report was made out at police station yesterday afternoon by Capt. John Miller. It read: "While cruising in Car. No. 6 in North Lake park, found boy had gone through thin ice. Got him out and sent him home." What the report didn't say was that Capt. Miller shouted advice to the lad, about 14, then sped to a nearby home, procured a length of garden hose and tossed it to the youngster, and then hauled him ashore, plenty wet and cold, but apparently little the worse otherwise for the experience. Capt. Miller overlooked the detail of getting th lad's name, but the rescue job was all done by the time the fire department arrived.

Clarence A. H. (Ohio Fuel) Hassinger nominates as "the bravest man in the country" M. R. Wellinger, who operates a farm 20 miles south of the city, where Hassinger hunted the other day. According to Hassinger, the farmer caught an eagle with a six-foot wing spread bare handed and has only a few scratches to show for his experience. Wellinger heard a comotion in a briar patch near his house, and found the eagle tangled in the weeds with a chicken in its mouth. He caught the eagle after a struggle, and now has it cooped up in a shed. He has not decided what to do with it.

HE HAS HOPE

U. S. Mediator Optimistic in Greyhound Bus Strike.

CLEVELAND —(U.P.)— Federal Labor Conciliator John Connor, seeking to settle a strike of bus drivers on eight Greyhound lines in 16 states, hoped to bring union and company representatives together for the first time today.

"Things look pretty good," Connor said, "and there seems to be no hard feelings on either side."

The strike, called by the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen to enforce demands for higher wages and a closed shop, forced suspension of service in some areas and curtailment in others. There were scattered reports of violence, particularly in Maryland and Massachusetts.

PEDESTRIANS BATTLE MURK WITH TORCHES

Transportation at Standstill As Britons Walk Arm in Arm to Avoid Dangers.

LONDON —(AP)— The greatest fog in many years curtained half of England today, choking transportation and endangering pedestrians and motorists.

Weather officials said the "blackout" was one of the worst on record and predicted it would continue over the week-end. At least 10 deaths had been attributed to the murk.

Trains and buses ran behind schedule or quit running altogether. Shipping on the lower Thames was halted. Pedestrians formed hand-to-hand chains to guide themselves along London't sidewalks behind leaders carrying torches of blazing newspapers.

Fall Into Reservoir.

Three persons fell into reservoirs and a river while groping in the darkness.

The three men in the crew of a German plane were killed last night when the craft crashed in taking off from fog-cloaked Croydon airdrome. The plane struck a hangar and its exploding fuel tanks set fire to the building.

Four motorists were killed early yesterday in a crash in a London suburb and several persons were injured at the Nottingham railway station when they tumbled off the platform.

A railway employe was struck by a train and killed.

Transatlantic liners due at English ports over the week-end were lessened they were fighting fierce gales and would be delayed many hours. Those due today included the Champlain, the Duchess of Atholl, the Ascaui and the Rotterdam.

Light Flares.

Automobile association scouts in the London rea lighted flares and convoyed automobiles. Many buses and private automobiles were stranded by numerous minor collisions.

The fog even altered the plans of statesmen. French Premier Camille Chautemps and Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos will arrive here tomorrow night to avert the possibility that the fog might make them tardy for the opening of talks on French-British foreign policy. They had planned to reach London on Monday.

Born in Wapakoneta, Mr. Potter was a resident of Mansfield for about seven years. He left here 10 years ago for Chicago where he was employed by the Pennsylvania railroad, with which he was connected while living in Mansfield.

Surviving are his wife, Cora, and two daughters, Marjorie and Eleanor at home.

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The implied promise in the title of Edward G. Robinson's new film, "The Last Gangster," is scarcely likely to be fulfilled. As long as Hollywood can find a new approach to its ever profitable hero, he'll be around.

The Robinson picture represents the modern slant on the underworld king—10 years later. Little Caesar and Scarface, best remembered of the movie gang heroes, got their just deserts and satisfied the censors by meeting death in an exiciting hail of bullets.

"The Last Gangster" looks back through socially conscious eyes upon a typical Little Caesar. It lets him swagger and lord it briefly before clapping him, without sentiment, into federal penitentiary. The law, matter-of-factly and serenely, humbles the big shot to the status of a number, makes him serve 10 years for income tax evasion. He comes out with one obsession—to track down his wife, reclaim his child.

The wife (Rose Stradner) has married a newspaperman (James Stewart) and the child is living a normal, happy life unaware of the existence of another father. In place of the old machine gun climax, "The Last Gangster" achieves its melodramatic finish in the struggle for the child. Robinson, the last gangster, dies knowing the error of his ways, winning audience pity if not condonement. Then (but not in the picture) he gets up, goes over to Warner Bros., and starts another film called "A Slight Case of Murder," in which he plays another gangster. The Metro film was directed by Edward Ludwig.

For those who want to know all about submarines and what makes them tick, the Warners have compiled a sugar-coated film textbook in "Submarine D-1." With the same thoroughness that characterized this studio's previous excursions into other branches of the U. S. military service, it explores the submarine navy and wrings therefrom all available thrills.

The reliable Flagg and Quirt controversy, with Wayne Morris subbing admirably for James Cagney opposite Pat O'Brien, is used again The girl is Doris Weston and George Brent is the officer whose career depends on the success of his submarine. The formula has never failed and its not likely to miss this time.

"Thoroughbreds Don't Cry" is what its title implies—a good, hokey yarn about kids and horseracing. The boys are Mickey Rooney who plays the tough swellheaded little American jockey, and Ronald Sinclair (pinch-hitting for Freddie Bartholomew), who is the little English gentleman whose granddaddy (C Aubrey Smith) has a horse. After giving each other black eyes, Mickey and Ronnie becomes fast friends, but Mickey is tricked into throwing a race

The results are fairly calamitous, but little Ronnie comes through and everybody's happy. Judy Garland and Sophie Tucker help things along, and it's all done so sincerely that the big race in the end—photographed as few races have been—becomes quite as thrilling as it's supposed to be

Celebrity is so commonplace out here. . . . Claire Trevor was chatting at the broadcasting studio while awaiting her turn on the air with Edward G. Robinson. . . . Talk turned to crime. . . Claire asked one of the men acting as technical adviser on her script, 'Have you read 'Here's to Crime?'" "Not since it was published," said Courtney Riley Cooper, who merely wrote it. . . .

TEST PLANE

Army Fliers at Dayton Study New Fighting Craft.

WRIGHT FIELD, Dayton —(U.P.)—Tests of the army's newest attack plane, the XFM-1, said to be capable of combating "anything that can fly," are being conducted here daily in rigid secrecy preparatory to its delivery to Langley Field, Va.

Sleeker in appearance than previous ships of similar type, the plane averaged nearly 200 miles an hour on what observers called an "easy flight" from Buffalo, N. Y., where it was manufactured by the Bell Aircraft company.

The fighter is equipped with two Allison liquid-cooled engines and driving pusher-type propellers.

'CONTACT MEN' OF U. S. BOOST TRADE VOLUME

Special Commerce Service Is Believed Responsible For Rapid Increase.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—To promote and facilitate a foreign trade volume which, according to latest estimates, will total more than $6,000,000,000 in 1937, the United States has developed an elaborate system of commercial "contact men" extending to every region of the world.

This "foreign commerce service" cost the government approximately $3,000,000 last year, but is believed to have been responsible for some of the successes achieved by the nation's world commerce during the past two years. Since 1934, the foreign commerce of the United States virtually has tripled itself.

The foreign commerce service is closely allied to the diplomatic service, but its functions are entirely different. It is by this complete separation, commercial experts contend, that the United States foreign commerce service has been able to develop its remarkable efficiency.

Diplomatic Status.

Although commercial attaches and trade commissioners have a liaison with their embassies and legations and enjoy diplomatic immunities and privileges, the commerce "contact men" are commissioned only to develop and report on foreign trade and foreign trade possibilities. All of them are trained economists and statisticians, as well as being thoroughly conversant with finance, business, and international affairs.

The United States maintains 100 such agents in various business capitals of the world. The most important posts are in Latin America, London, Berlin, Paris, Ottawa, Shanghai and Manila.

Head of this organization is H. Lawrence Groves, whose title is director of foreign commerce service in the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. Groves also is a member of the reciprocal trade agreements committee, which compiles recommendations for the negotiations of the agreements for tariff concessions with other nations.

Trained to Be Engineer.

The director has engaged in government commerce work since 1919. Before that he held positions with several of the largest industrial organizations in the United States. By profession he is a civil engineer.

Groves served in European posts between 1919 and 1933, making a remarkable record for establishing commercial contacts for United States business and industrial interests. In 1935 he was appointed assistant director of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, and later was promoted to his present position.

Thick Fog Blankets London, Death Toll Stands At 10

Not That It Matters

—By JANE WILLIAMS

ONE must admire the expeditious and effective manner in which the English courts deal with libel actions. Their laws on libel are not so involved as ours, and do not deal with the intent of the writer. It is merely a question of whether a printed statement is true or not true, and it falls upon the writer to prove his statements. In the case of Geoffrey Dennis, author of "Coronation Commentary," whose two concluding chapters on Edward and the woman he married caused a furore in England but were not even mildly sensational over here, the English court made short work of it this week.

When called upon to prove his statement that the American woman was the king's mistress before she became his duchess, Dennis was left stranded high and dry without a shred of evidence and not only received a bawling out that reverberated over the jolly little island, but must pay a sum far exceeding the profits from his book. Something of the sort happened several years ago when an author thought it would be jolly to tear Mr. Gladstone down from his pedestal.

And every English author is careful about the way in which he handles the name of Queen Victoria.

Author Dennis should have come to America to write the last two chapters of his book.

"It Can't Happen Here" seems to be the conclusion on all of those street corner and across-the-luncheon table discussions of the Davey-For-President possibility Few persons are worried, although many are scornful of the idea.

The possibility keeps insistently raising its head in the daily news as the result of the governor's encounters with labor. Fantastic? To those who do not admire the governor nor his administration, it is more than fantastic—but it could happen.

Calvin Coolidge rose to national prominence and importance because of locking horns with strikers when he was governor of Massachusetts, and he profited politically thereby.

If the Roosevelt sun should set before 1940, Ohio's governor would stand out as the only Democratic governor who openly defied the president and members of the president's political family. Yes, indeedy, it could happen here.

There are quite a few of us here in Ohio who hope that it won't.

CRITICIZING President Roosevelt for inconsequential mistakes in grammar in times like these is the height of something or other. A college president—a woman—is in a dither because the president miss-com-fuddles his "shall" and "will" in extemporaneous speeches, and uses "as" when he should use "like." As who doesn't?

The lady reminds me of a sparrow on a telegraph wire, chattering its silly little complaints while the news of wars, revolution, disaster and death is flashed to the world under its feet.

ERNEST W. STAFFORD, Loudonville, R. F. D. 1, writes me that the Copus monument and little graveyard, of which I wrote last week, are not in Richland county, but a short distance from the Richland-Ashland line in the latter county. It is nine tenths of a mile south of the Charles Mill dam and four miles northeast of Lucas.

What interested me most in his letter was the fact that the inscription on the monument (one side of which is in memory of Johnny Appleseed) is almost undecipherable now and the little cemetery where the massacred pioneer's wife and family lie is forgotten and the monuments broken down and weather-beaten beyond identification.

Isn't there some patriotic society that could be interested in a project to restore the markers? They carry the history of the settling of this part of Ohio in their ruins.

You can buy a two-year-old from the government for $60. . . . Fingerprint experts are going to have something to worry about in the future. It has just been learned that the Dionne quints have finger prints and foot prints that are almost identical. . . . "Disappointed" writes that she is frightfully disappointed when I don't answer criticisms of this column that appear in the Letters From Readers. The reason is that this column is not a controversial one but is just one person's ideas and comments Letters from Readers are ditto. . . . A real Thanksgiving day would be one in which a person could rejoice and be thankful that he had sense enough not to stuff and gorge himself with food. . . .

WHEN a Mansfield concern sent a statement to a local lad in New York City for $1.98 "on account," he filled in after those two words with this ode to "on account of"—

On account of the cost of bacon and beans
And the roof we have over our heads,
On account of high taxes and very slow taxies
And Mazie who dusts and makes beds,
On account of the market, and business (it's rotten)
And F. D., who makes terrible laws,
On account of all these, plus extravagant "she's"
Please "charge"—on account of because!

Cities Back Early Job Insurance Benefits

ASSEMBLY TO WEIGH RELIEF PLANS MONDAY

Municipal Officials Agree to Part of Davey's Program But Fight Other Proposals.

COLUMBUS—(AP)—Officials of most of Ohio's major cities agreed today that Gov. Martin L. Davey's plan for speeding payment of unemployment insurance benefits would help the relief problem by caring for newly unemployed persons but their opposition to other features of his general relief program remained the chief problem confronting the special legislative session.

The governor issued a call for prompt approval of the plan, at the session opening Monday, after the federal social security board agreed that Ohio's law could be amended so that benefits would be payable beginning Jan. 1, 1938, instead of Jan. 1, 1939 as at present.

Cautions State.

The board cautioned that requirements of the federal social security act must be met, but Davey said at his home in Kent:

"It will be a hard job but it can be done. I am deeply gratified. Quick action will be necessary on the part of the legislature in order that we can complete the set-up for payment of compensation by Jan. 1."

Said the board in its statement yesterday:

"Judging from experience of other states in establishing administrative machinery and procedures necessary to pay benefits, it is doubtful if any state could, without several months preparation, develop methods for this purpose which could meet the requirements of the social security act that administration * * * must be such as is found by the social security board to insure full payment of unemployment compensation when due."

MAPS QUICK START

COLUMBUS —(U.P.)— The Ohio unemployment compensation commission can get its machinery in shape to begin insurance benefit payments by Jan. 1, as proposed by Governor Davey, although the task will be difficult, Chairman Charles S. Leasure said today.

Eighteen state employment offices in 16 counties, due to be transferred Jan. 1 from the department of industrial relations to the unemployment compensation commission, will be the nucleus of the administrative set-up, Leasure pointed out.

For complete administration of the law, he said, the employment offices will have to be increased from 65 to 90. Each industrial county will have to have one or more such offices, to handle applications for benefits and investigate applicants' claims.

The first shipment arrived a week ago (Frary personally escorted 'em to town) and another one's due Monday.

A routine police report was made out at police station yesterday afternoon by Capt. John Miller. It read: "While cruising in Car. No. 6 in North Lake park, found boy had gone through thin ice. Got him out and sent him home." What the report didn't say was that Capt. Miller shouted advice to the lad, about 1½, then sped to a nearby home, procured a length of garden hose and tossed it to the youngster, and then hauled him ashore, plenty wet and cold, but apparently little the worse otherwise for the experience. Capt. Miller overlooked the detail of getting th lad's name, but the rescue job was all done by the time the fire department arrived.

Clarence A. H. (Ohio Fuel) Hassinger nominates as "the bravest man in the country" M. R. Wellinger, who operates a farm 20 miles south of the city, where Hassinger hunted the other day. According to Hassinger, the farmer caught an eagle with a six-foot wing spread bare handed and has only a few scratches to show for his experience. Wellinger heard a comotion in a briar patch near his house, and found the eagle tangled in the weeds with a chicken in its mouth. He caught the eagle after a struggle, and now has it cooped up in a shed. He has not decided what to do with it.

PEDESTRIANS BATTLE MURK WITH TORCHES

Transportation at Standstill As Britons Walk Arm in Arm to Avoid Dangers.

LONDON —(AP)— The greatest fog in many years curtained half of England today, choking transportation and endangering pedestrians and motorists.

Weather officials said the "blackout" was one of the worst on record and predicted it would continue over the week-end. At least 10 deaths had been attributed to the murk.

Trains and buses ran behind schedule or quit running altogether. Shipping on the lower Thames was halted. Pedestrians formed hand-to-hand chains to guide themselves along London't sidewalks behind leaders carrying torches of blazing newspapers.

Fall Into Reservoir.

Three persons fell into reservoirs and a river while groping in the darkness.

The three men in the crew of a German plane were killed last night when the craft crashed in taking off from fog-cloaked Croydon airdrome. The plane struck a hangar and its exploding fuel tanks set fire to the building.

Four motorists were killed early yesterday in a crash in a London suburb and several persons were injured at the Nottingham railway station when they tumbled off the platform.

A railway employe was struck by a train and killed.

Transatlantic liners due at English ports over the week-end wirelessed they were fighting fierce gales and would be delayed many hours Those due today included the Champlain, the Duchess of Atholl, the Ascanai and the Rotterdam.

Light Flares.

Automobile association scouts in the London area lighted flares and convoyed automobiles. Many buses and private automobiles were stranded by numerous minor collisions.

Visibility at the Charing Cross station in the heart of London was two yards.

The fog even altered the plans of statesmen. French Premier Camille Chautemps and Foreign Minister Yvon Delbos will arrive here tomorrow night to avert the possibility that the fog might make them tardy for the opening of talks on French-British foreign policy. They had planned to reach London on Monday.

TAX FUNDS DROP IN 87 COUNTIES

Lorain Only Subdivision in State Reporting Increase In Sales Levy Revenues.

COLUMBUS — (UP) — Lorain county today remained the only county of the state's 88 which reported a greater sale of prepaid sales tax receipts for 1937 than for 1936, State Treasurer Clarence H. Knisley said.

This year's collections for that county were $623,744 against $623,350 for the same date last year.

"However," Knisley said, "this margin is small and it is our prediction that before another week Lorain county will be numbered with the other 87 who have shown income less than last year's

The exemption of the tax on foods has caused a general decrease of approximately 11 per cent in the state, the treasurer said.

Richland county, which for several months this year showed an increase in tax receipts, showed a drop of 5.67 per cent for the first 10 months of the year, while the drop for October was 28.12 per cent. Total sales tax collections for 10 months in Richland county this year were $472,744, as compared to $501,201 for the same period last year.

CINCY REGISTERS JOBLESS AS 2,000 REPLY TO 'CHALLENGE'

CINCINNATI— (AP) —Registration of unemployed who turned out to help City Manager C. O. Sherrill put down the saying that "you can't get people to work" was continued by a corps of welfare workers today.

The welfare staff was swamped as 2,000 men applied for city-created jobs yesterday. Sherrill promised that jobs would be provided "for every man who is willing to work and is eligible for relief."

Welfare Director Omar H. Caswell said that 814 in the lineup were registered and he expected 500 others to report today. He said records showed that 270 of that number are on relief rolls. 402 formerly were receiving relief and 103 were asking for aid for the first time.

The throng of idle men—and a few women—formed a march to the workhouse three miles distant when they overrun the downton relief headquarters. Others hailed taxicabs to be at the head of the list.

Eighteen were given jobs immediately and Caswell expected the assignments would be completed in a week.

Sherrill said the men would be given odd jobs, including wrecking abandoned buildings, crushing stone and hauling dirt.

The men will be paid by vouchers on a 50-cent hourly basis, which Sherill said might be revised to provide $31.50 monthly for a family of three and up to $75 monthly for an unemployed man wih eight dependents.

Sherill asserted that a man receiving no money "will have plenty of incentive to go out and seek work where he will have cash coming to him."

Hollywood Speaks—

—By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—The implied promise in the title of Edward G. Robinson's new film, "The Last Gangster," is scarcely likely to be fulfilled. As long as Hollywood can find a new approach to its ever profitable hero, he'll be around.

The Robinson picture represents the modern slant on the underworld king—10 years later. Little Caesar and Scarface, best remembered of the movie gang heroes, got their just deserts and satisfied the censors by meeting death in an exiciting hail of bullets.

"The Last Gangster" looks back through socially conscious eyes upon a typical Little Caesar It lets him swagger and lord it briefly before clapping him, without sentiment, into federal penitentiary. The law, matter-of-factly and serenely, humbles the big shot to the status of a number, makes him serve 10 years for income tax evasion He comes out with one obsession—to track down his wife, reclaim his child

The wife (Rose Stradner) has married a newspaperman (James Stewart) and the child is living a normal, happy life unaware of the existence of another father. In place of the old machine gun climax, "The Last Gangster" achieves its melodramatic finish in the struggle for the child. Robinson, the last gangster, dies knowing the error of his ways, winning audience pity if not condonement Then (but not in the picture) he gets up, goes over to Warner Bros., and starts another film called "A Slight Case of Murder," in which he plays another gangster. The Metro film was directed by Edward Ludwig.

For those who want to know all about submarines and what makes them tick, the Warners have compiled a sugar-coated film textbook in "Submarine D-1." With the same thoroughness that characterized this studio's previous excursions into other branches of the U. S. military service, it explores the submarine navy and wrings therefrom all available thrills.

The reliable Flagg and Quirt controversy, with Wayne Morris subbing admirably for James Cagney opposite Pat O'Brien, is used again The girl is Doris Weston, and George Brent is the officer whose career depends on the success of his submarine The formula has never failed and its not likely to miss this time

"Thoroughbreds Don't Cry" is what its title implies—a good, hokey yarn about kids and horseracing. The boys are Mickey Rooney, who plays the tough swellheaded little American jockey, and Ronald Sinclair (pinch-hitting for Freddie Bartholomew), who is the little English gentleman whose granddaddy (C Aubrey Smith) has a horse After giving each other black eyes, Mickey and Ronnie becomes fast friends but Mickey is tricked into throwing a race

The results are fairly calamitous, but little Ronnie comes through and everybody's happy. Judy Garland and Sophie Tucker help things along, and it's all done so sincerely that the big race in the end—photographed as few races have been—becomes quite as thrilling as it's supposed to be

TEST PLANE

Army Fliers at Dayton Study New Fighting Craft.

WRIGHT FIELD, Dayton —(U.P.)—Tests of the army's newest attack plane, the XFM-1, said to be capable of combating "anything that can fly," are being conducted here daily in rigid secrecy preparatory to its delivery to Langley Field, Va.

Sleeker in appearance than previous ships of similar type, the plane averaged nearly 200 miles an hour on what observers called an "easy flight" from Buffalo, N. Y., where it was manufactured by the Bell Aircraft company.

The fighter is equipped with two Allison liquid-cooled engines and driving pusher-type propellers.

The plane was designed to combat the "flying fortress" type of bombers.

'CONTACT MEN' OF U. S. BOOST TRADE VOLUME

Special Commerce Service Is Believed Responsible For Rapid Increase.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—To promote and facilitate a foreign trade volume which, according to latest estimates, will total more than $6,000,000,000 in 1937, the United States has developed an elaborate system of commercial "contact men" extending to every region of the world.

This "foreign commerce service" cost the government approximately $3,000,000 last year, but is believed to have been responsible for some of the successes achieved by the nation's world commerce during the past two years. Since 1934, the foreign commerce of the United States virtually has tripled itself.

The foreign commerce service is closely allied to the diplomatic service, but its functions are entirely different. It is by this complete separation, commercial experts contend, that the United States foreign commerce service has been able to develop its remarkable efficiency.

Diplomatic Status.

Although commercial attaches and trade commissioners have a liaison with their embassies and legations and enjoy diplomatic immunities and privileges, the commerce "contact men" are commissioned only to develop and report on foreign trade and foreign trade possibilities. All of them are trained economists and statisticians, as well as being thoroughly conversant with finance, business, and international affairs.

The United States maintains 100 such agents in various business capitals of the world. The most important posts are in Latin America, London, Berlin, Paris, Ottawa, Shanghai and Manila.

Head of this organization is H. Lawrence Groves, whose title is director of foreign commerce service in the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce. Groves also is a member of the reciprocal trade agreements committee, which compiles recommendations for the negotiations of the agreements for tariff concessions with other nations.

Trained to Be Engineer.

The director has engaged in government commerce work since 1919. Before that he held positions with several of the largest industrial organizations in the United States. By profession he is a civil engineer.

Groves served in European posts between 1919 and 1933, making a remarkable record for establishing commercial contacts for United States business and industrial interests. In 1935 he was appointed assistant director of the bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, and later was promoted to his present position.

CREDITORS NAMED IN WILL

ST. LOUIS —(U.P.)—Because his creditors were considerate and courteous toward him, Paul Saric, a steamship ticket agent who died Oct. 28, named them chief beneficiaries in his will filed in probate court here.

Even the wisdom of Confucius, preached and practiced by Gen. Chiang Kai-Shek, doesn't take the place of guns and warplanes.

Very likely, as the English judge says, the fellow who wrote that book about Edward should be horsewhipped—if anybody could find a horsewhip.

Neighborly Visiting.

CANADIAN authorities report that 15,000,000 people from the United States visited Canada in the first nine months of this year. Final figures for the year are expected to reach 19,000,000, probably the greatest number of people who ever traveled from one country to another for business and pleasure.

Canada makes a nice profit out of it, too. The director of the Dominion Tourist bureau estimates that the nine months' traffic so far has brought into the country $300,000,000.

No figures are available to show how far this traffic is reciprocated. It would be a small fraction of ours, because Canada has only a little more than 10,000,000 people, and Canadians mostly have less money for travel than we have. Their visitors on our side of the line could hardly be more than a few hundred thousands.

Many more Canadians would come to the States, for business and pleasure, and spend their money here, if we gave them a square deal. The exchange value of American and Canadian dollars runs about even and Canadians regularly accept our dollars at par. But Canadians coming over here are usually forced to pay a big premium for American currency. That keeps away thousands of people and millions of dollars.

Goosebone Prediction.

THIS is to be a short but cold winter. That is the forecast of the squirrels, beavers, muskrats and other creatures on an animal farm in New Hampshire. More accurately, it is the forecast made by the farm manager after observing the animals.

The squirrels' tails have not yet feathered. The beavers have not yet begun to store their winter wood. The muskrats have not gathered their winter food. All these things are supposed to mean "little snow or ice until after Christmas."

Residents of several northern states read this cheering news while motorists skidded into ditches, cities sent out extra squads to scatter salt and cinders on icy pavements, and children got out their sleds to take advantage of an unusually heavy fall of snow.

The only trouble with the natural weather prophets and the natural signs they interpret is that they have no scientific basis. They don't mean anything, the meteorologists tell us.

Experiment With Winter Corn.

FARMERS around Dundee, Ill., are interested in an experiment one of their number is making with corn. John Nepermann planted several acres late in October and expects to harvest a fully matured crop next summer a month ahead of his neighbors. The seed was chemically treated. The process, it is claimed, will produce exceptionally hardy plant growth and a yield above the average.

The discoverer of this treatment says that all ripe seeds with germ life may be planted in the fall and will withstand the rigors of winter, germinate in the spring and resist spring cold snaps and summer pests. Growing time will be saved so that when the pests normally appear, in June or July, the plants will be far enough along in development to withstand their attacks.

It is just as well to wait and watch, as farmers are doing, before accepting this winter corn as a sure thing. But so many improvements have been made in agricultural methods that good results need surprise nobody.

Burping.

PERHAPS it is unwise to tell this story. Some foolish people might start out imitating the people involved—though their experience should be adequate warning.

It concerns a little group of four married couples, who call themselves the Burp club, and foregather occasionally to play cards and crook social elbows. After such a gathering lately, they decided to go to the home of one of the couples for a midnight snack. An argument developed as to the relative merits of two cars, and it was agreed to test them on the trip. Two couples got into one car and two into the other, and they started for their destination by opposite routes.

It wasn't a victory for anybody. They met squarely in front of the house, head on. The effect was two damaged cars, various bruises and a lawsuit. The participants finally made up again, but are less impulsive now in their burping and bumping.

Antique Bathtub.

AN INTERESTING relic is reported at Topsham, Me. It is a bathtub 128 years old, still in use. Many are surprised to learn that there were bathtubs that long ago.

It is a queer contraption, built of wood and lined with lead, and almost as deep as it is long. Nothing is said, in the report of it, about plumbing connections, but probably there were none. There might be a drain, but there would hardly be a pipe letting the water into it.

As for the material used, there is nothing really very ancient about that. Wooden tubs lined with lead or tin, but more modern in shape, may still be found in many older cities.

Any comparison, however, tends to make this generation conscious of its blessings.

Under the same process of reasoning, all horses were also created equal—but very few of them are derby winners.

Republicans give the impression of being typical Americans—with no two thinking alike.

McIntyre's New York Day by Day

THIS is as good a day as any to wonder just how far they are going to stretch the week-end. When I laboured in the news-rooms the week used to end Saturday. If lucky we got off a little early Saturday afternoon and had Sunday for our very own.

This regulation was general. Then not many years ago we adopted "week-ends," which meant we knocked off Saturday at noon or maybe Friday night. Finally we quit early Friday afternoon and showed up fairly late Monday morning. In England I discovered the week-end is from Friday lunch to Monday lunch.

Yet, even so, we have topped merry old England. Adela Rogers St. Johns recently delivered a manuscript to a weekly magazine editor on Wednesday morning at 11. His secretary came out and with a scornful glance said: "I'm sorry but Mr. Soandso left for the week-end this morning."

Illusion: Dorothy Parker is widely three-sheeted as most daring of the punsters. Yet those close to her say she is fearfully shy and rarely indulges the verbal riposte for which she has become noted. Also she is so afraid of newspaper men she has become practically a recluse.

Few non-dog-owners would believe dogs are conscious of time. Yet evidence piles up. For instance, a member of our household goes regularly twice a week shopping and returns at 1 o'clock, invariably prompt. On such days, within two or three minutes of the time for her return, our deaf Boston, Billy, now gone, would arouse himself, asleep or awake, and go to the front hall to sit a few feet from the door—waiting. He never missed.

Eventually most New Yorkers tire of the peacock fripperies of the gaudy cafes. There is something irritating to the true trencherman about people who come to a restaurant to be seen more than to express a zest for food. Like that professional society party thrower who bounces from table to table, hallooing across the room and otherwise trying to be the whole show! The practised gourmet studiously avoids such places. When he dines out you will find him at rendezvous rarely mentioned in society chit-chat. Dark-timbered sherry and beef havens with old prints, and perhaps a collection of steins racked around the wall. Instead of shrieking jazz, the clatter of knives and forks and the tinkle of glass. No roster of the "small hour" blades, but diners who know the cut of a steak and to whom a goblet of rare port or a tankard of nut brown ale are a help and not a refuge. These ancient, sturdy places keep their hold in the midst of eternal change.

Whenever in this vast crowded center columning seems a mighty task I often think of Will Rice, who lives at a crossroad place in the deep Ozarks, where nothing happens, and yet turns out readable columns for a group of country newspapers. Few strangers come to his crotch of the creek and there are no entertainments such as theater, movie, etc. Trains run through twice a week and night life consists of an owl's hoot or so, or perhaps the mournful strains of a mouth organ from across a faraway ridge. Yet Rice manages to winnow full blooded observations about life and its meaning amid such desolation. Excellent stuff that papers are glad to print. Hidden treasures from lost caves.

Often magazine editors find some of their better pieces come from the abandoned and pindling places of the earth—out where the blackberry bushes hold up the rail fences. Opie Read's fine novels for another generation were turned out in the swamps of Arkansas, far from railroads. Harold Bell Wright got his plots out of the Ozarks. There is something inspiring an itch to write amid bleakness. Whittier's Snowbound, for instance. And Edith Wharton's "Ethan Frome."

The magazine piece of my own I like better than most was written in a surround of cowling hills of old Mexico in one of those dusks that hang so despairingly until the first twinkle of stars pricks through. My typewriter was on an old soap box and my chair an enormous sack of frijoles. Out the window a shy young deer was tethered to a sapling. A short space away was the clearest pool of water I had ever seen. A pool in which the rock bottom 15 feet below was plainly visible as were a dozen varieties of darting highly colored fish.

EGG SHORTAGE

A Year-End of Shocks Ahead For Us—

—By LESLIE EICHEL

THE American public will have to inure itself to several great shocks during the usual joyous year-end.

The unemployment census, which although it skipped thousands, will be far above what had been anticipated.

Last-quarter earnings of many corporations will be exceptionally low. In fact, there may be no earnings.

Railroad rates may be increased (a form of taxation) in spite of the fact that increased rates hitherto have deprived the railroads of business rather than helped them.

Farm income for the year may be nearly half a billion dollars less than had been anticipated, due to falling prices.

Relief figures, instead of being cut, may have to be doubled.

Public works may be undertaken on a greater scale than ever as the winter reveals the full extent of the immediate aid needed.

And, yet—everything is here for prosperity, if men with imagination and vision fearlessly lead the way to economic and social readjustment. That does not mean any "foreign doctrine." That means a common sense, realistic facing of the economic stalemate we have reached—and a recognition that natural laws are governed by evolution even if men and society pretend not to be.

* * *

FEAR PSYCHOSIS

Ones sees with dismay the heedless, wild running around in circles of some leaders in industry, with many would-be political leaders, tagging along after.

The only cry being uttered by many is "Balance the budget," and "Curb Roosevelt!"

Every sensible person, of course, believes in a balanced budget. But suppose the national budget were balanced this very moment: How long till every industry were bankrupt? How long till the unemployed rose in revolt? One can't take drink from a man without giving him a substitute that will steady him and build him up. Take it away too suddenly, and you'll bury the man.

Curb Roosevelt and there may be not a Vandenburg in 1940, but a La Follette or much, much further left. Any newspaperman who goes out among the population will give you the same answer. The pendulum might swing so violently, this way and that, it could swing even a Fascist dictator into power.

Unreasoning fear and invectives, therefore, may bring on the very conditions which are dreaded most.

If some sound reasoning, calm men could rise in industry and lead the way, the government and labor certainly would join hands with them. Everybody prays for a solution of the economic impasse. But few desire to travel the hard, realistic road that is necessary.

* * *

TO PASS?

The present setback, of course, will pass when goods on hand have been consumed. A nation of 130,000,000 persons, after all has tremendous needs. Also government spending again will provide a fillip. Once more there will be a ride on the merry-go-round—but merry-go-rounds get no one to a destination.

Listen, World!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

There Are Days When "Elsie Doesn't Live Here Any More."

THERE are days when everything's wrong. Not just fussy, tangled days—but days when things are hellishly, hopelessly wrong to their very roots. Days when I lose my grip on life . . . nothing seems worth while . . . and I don't give a hoot what happens.

People need me on those days, as they always do. My job needs me. Duties, responsibilities, obligations surround me—clamor at me. But I don't care.

I'M A SLACKER AND I KNOW IT—
AND I DON'T CARE A HOOT WHAT ANYONE THINKS.
I'VE LOST MY WAY.
ELSIE DOESN'T LIVE HERE ANY MORE—
SO PHOOEY TO EVERYTHING!

I have days like that and I've always had them. And, once, I thought they were unique.

I looked out of my sick eyes . . . I huddled deeper into my sick heart . . . and wondered why God had played such a dirty trick on me.

WHY DID GOD EQUIP EVERYONE ELSE WITH THE WILL-TO-GO-ON, AND GIVE ME NOTHING BUT BURNT-OUT SPARK PLUGS? WHY WERE OTHERS ABLE TO WORK WHEN THEY WERE BORED OR TIRED . . . LAUGH WHEN THEY WERE SAD . . . HAVE HOPE WHEN THEY WERE BUSTED . . . WHILE I, ALONE, WAS A DEAD WIRE?

Yes, everyone else had The Breaks . . . but I'd been gypped! And WAS I sore—and filled with self-pity.

That's how I felt. Then something happened. Never mind what happened—but it certainly put me wise to myself in record time. And I found myself facing certain facts which made me feel like a nicked nickel.

I WASN'T DIFFERENT . . . OR UNIQUE. GOD HADN'T GIVEN ME A BUM BREAK AND MADE EVERYONE ELSE TEACHER'S PET.

WE WERE ALL ALIKE. EVERYONE FELT, AT TIMES, JUST AS I DID. AND THE ONLY REASON THEY PERFORMED AND I DIDN'T WAS THAT THEY HAD THE SPUNK TO GO ON REGARDLESS . . . AND I WAS A SPOILED, CONCEITED CRY-BABY!

We were all the same. We all had bad days, blue days . . . restless, aimless, don't-give-a-hoot-days. They weren't abnormal — those days. They were a natural and inevitable part of our animal evolution. We were restless and aimless, miserable and disinterested at times, because animals are that way . . . and we are still largely animal, and often slump back into our jungle ways . . .

FORGET TO BE MEN . . .
FEEL, INSTEAD, LIKE APES.

Why am I telling you all this? Because you are like this, too. You have the same cowardly, cockeyed, conceited notions. And, each day, at least 496 of you tell me so.

And the answer is the same for you as it is for me—

SNAP OUT OF IT, YOU LAZY BABOON!
QUIT CODDLING AND CRYING OVER YOURSELF . . . QUIT THINKING THAT SOME JUNGLE BUGABOO HAS DONE YOU DIRT . . . QUIT DOUBLE-CROSSING YOUR GANG—
AND REMEMBER YOU'RE A MAN!
REMEMBER YOU'VE LEFT YOUR MONKEY BRAIN AND MONKEY TAIL BEHIND YOU . . . AND HAVE PUT ON THE BODY AND FIGHTING PRIDE OF A MAN . . .
AND ARE ENLISTED IN A BRAVE CAUSE UNDER A PROUD GOD WHO NEEDS YOUR HELP!

You don't feel like fighting? Who does? But what of it? Are you a monkey . . . or a man?
THEN PROVE IT!

The KKK Crusaders.

Heartened perhaps by the national honor accorded one of their former members, the Ku-Klux Klan topped off an initiation ceremony in Florida by raiding and wrecking a night club which did not meet with the approval of the organization.

Secure in the anonymity afforded by their streamlined pillowslips, the crusaders gave their 100 per cent Americanism full play by taking the law into their own hands.

Of course the members probably would have rather gone out and flogged the daylights out of some helpless man or woman and perhaps burned down a shack or two, as such activities would appeal more to their peculiar sporting instincts, but at least raiding a night club offered something in the way of variety.

Who knows but beneath one of those pallid bedsheets there reposes another individual marked by destiny to attain high place in the judiciary of the nation. The man who breaks up the most chairs might so distinguish himself as to be rewarded with a seat on the bench. There is precedent for such a prediction.—Ohio State Journal.

Everyday Poems

—By GEORGE ELLISTON

Each Day Is New.

Each day is new. Bear that in mind.
Wipe off the old day's slate,
And turn with zest to meet the tasks
That in the new day wait.

This is a shining motto set:
Forget the yesterday's
Mistakes, remember but their joy,
Their kind deeds and their praise.

Upon the substance of the joys
You knew in times gone by
Build this new day and let its goal
Swing beautiful and high.

Each day is new. It waits your will,
Go forth to it and say,
"With courage and new faith and hope
I'll turn to this new day."

What One Man Thinks

—By DAVID GIBSON

Observations of Travel.

THERE is somebody from either Aurora, Ind., Mt. Vernon, O., or Poughkeepsie, N. Y., in every town in the United States—I suppose it is by reason of the great age of these communities.

In all large cities that I have visited recently I observe a great many luxury items displayed in shop windows—particularly those that pertain to woman's attire and adornment.

In one Cincinnati display window I saw an evening gown of gold fabric on a model. It attracted great throngs of women—all dressed below par.

Obviously, some new-rich man will buy this gown for his wife to display his ability to pay and to the less fortunate—"vanity and chasing after wind!"

The desire for these items comes from down up — the under-dressed who were out before that Cincinnati show window gawking at that gold gown.

Shakespeare, in Julius Caesar, says: "When the king rides by in his carriage the peasantry throw up their sweaty night caps and fill the air with a deal of stinking breath by their cheers, and by that act they create the king."

And the same principle applies to luxury items—if the poor didn't admire them, the rich would not buy them.

CINCINNATI is in a prime moral state. There is little or no corruption in the conduct of public affairs and all reasonable laws and ordinances are being enforced without discrimination.

Twenty years ago Cincinnati got so bad in the way of graft and non-enforcement of law that it could not have possibly become any worse, and then it began to get better—and up to its present high moral state.

As one thinking citizen put it to me: "It is getting so good just now that it is apt to get worse and go back to its old state of 20 years ago."

Chicago, Cleveland and New York have become so evil that they are now just beginning to clean up.

All this is on the principle that evil finally destroys itself, and under civic virtue, after a time at least, the public becomes neglectful—careless.

"Eternal vigilance is the price of liberty!"

Cincinnati's high moral state is reflecting itself in its credit. My friend Lawrence Cook, Cleveland, large dealer in municipal securities, tells me that there is not a Cincinnati municipal bond on the market; that the last batch of 5-per cents, callable in 1942, sold for 120½.

In riding through many of the smaller central west cities I observe very beautiful postoffice buildings that have recently been completed.

They are simple, mostly of brick and far more honest in architectural design than any of the more pretentious structures of recent years in great cities.

They are all designed in the government architect's office, Washington, which is not always true of the latter.

I am told that Rudolph Stanley-Brown, a young Cleveland architect, and a member of the Garfield family, is individually responsible for these very attractive smaller government structures.

During the depression the government architect's office was able to attract the best young artist-architects from all over the country, but these are gradually drifting back into private practice.

In the various newspapers that I have published I have always tried to impress upon their editors the importance of local news; that the home folks were a good deal more interested in a dog fight out in front of the office than in a tidal wave or an earthquake down in Paramaribo, Dutch Guiana; that when in doubt to put local news on the front page.

The correctness of this theory was proven the other day when I stopped at a farm house near Noblesville, Ind., to inquire the address of an old friend.

A wholesome farm woman answered the door. She was not certain and invited me in while she made confirmation over the telephone from a neighbor.

She said that she was alone most of the time, she and her dog. I observed that she wanted to talk and to make a little conversation I remarked that she no doubt got a good deal of pleasure from her radio.

"No," she replied, "I don't turn on the radio much any more since Clara, Lou and Em went off the air, but every morning after I get the house rid up I listen over the telephone for an hour—there are seven parties on my line and always something interesting among the neighbors.

"Fer instance," she went on, "there's the rich, Indianapolis folks that live right across the road there. I always take down the receiver when their number rings—their conversations are always more interesting; for it is about money, clothes and going somewhere on a vacation. Just now they are getting ready to go to Florida, but don't want certain relatives in Indianapolis to know it—all the neighbors around here know it, fer they were listenin' in, too."

BOOTH TARKINGTON is entirely blind in one eye and his vision much impaired in the other. He uses three pairs of glasses for varying distances.

He is still very active as a writer; much of his manuscript is hand-written, some by dictation.

My old friend, Dr. Carleton B. McCulloch, Indianapolis, showed me a recent letter of Mr. Tarkington. It was written in large characters on large sheets of thick, rough, yellow paper—about like that used by printers for the cover-pages of booklets. The lines and words were irregular, but every letter was legible.

The old time whisker-and-boot Hoosier farmer that I knew is no more.

He was the grandfather of the present generation. All respect and reverence to his memory; for he did the real work in clearing the land and by the results of his labor we, of cities, have our daily bread.

While in Indianapolis, there was a state convention of Farm Bureau members. I observed them as they stood about hotel lobbies, and the modern farmer has much of the personal appearance of a high grade building mechanic in his Sunday clothes.

All were clean shaven, many of them wore glasses of modern design and none were bundled up as in the old days when they came to a city—didn't wear even mufflers or overshoes—they had all traveled on trains or in their own heated automobiles.

Their wives were all modishly attired—no horse and buggy way of doing their hair—all look like city women and even better—to me, at least.

There was not much jollity and mirth among these modern farmers as in a case of a convention of city men; they discussed their problems with serious faces, they ate good food in the hotel restaurants with Emily Post manners, but none patronized the cocktail bars.

The farming industry about Indiana, according to my superficial observation, seems to be dividing up into specialties, the mejor divisions being field, orchard and garden crops and animal husbandry.

A livestock farmer will often buy feed from a neighbor and the farmer who produces the feed may have nothing in the way of livestock save a pet dog.

The fact should be drummed into every city dweller that the farmer is the real, the fundamental producer of wealth and that there will be no city prosperity without farm prosperity.

HOROSCOPE

For Sunday, Nov. 28.

Sunday's horoscope is an excellent one for the affairs of church, state and philanthropy, as well as all cultural pursuits. All should flourish. Yet, amusements, sports, al man e of social and domestic functions, and "sentimental journeys" may lure from commonplace activities.

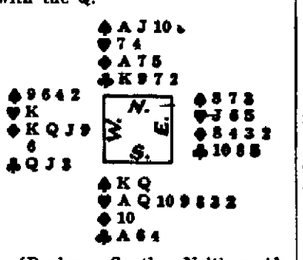
BARCLAY ON BRIDGE

By Shepard Barclay

"The Authority on Authorities"

GUARDING YOURSELF

When your side has nine trumps headed by the A and Q, your best chance to make all of the trump tricks is to finesse the Q. But if you can afford one loser in the suit and not two, the safety play is to come up with the A on the first round and deliberately give up any chance for an overtrick unless the A happens to drop the singleton K. In case it does not drop that K, you still stand to lose only one trick except in cases where you find both the missing K and J to your left, together with a small card guard. Your correct play on the second round, unless the fourth player shows out at the start, is to come up with the Q.



(Dealer: South. Neither side vulnerable.)

This deal arose in a rubber game and the final contract reached by South was 6-Hearts, the diamond K being the opening lead against it.

When the declarer won this trick with the diamond A, he reasoned there was no problem to the hand if he could confine his loss in the trump suit to one trick. He, therefore, finessed the heart Q, which lost to the K, and when in the lead again, laid down the heart A, feeling that the remaining trumps would drop. When this was not the case, he lost a trick to the heart J and was set one.

The safest play for South to have made on the first trick was the heart A. This would have provided for every adverse situation, except had West held three to the K-J, in which case the contract would not have been made.

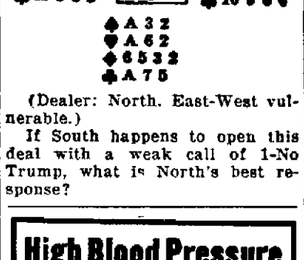
Monday's Problem.



(Dealer: North. East-West vulnerable.)

If South happens to open this deal with a weak call of 1-No Trump, what is North's best response?

Marriage Meddlers

By ADELE GARRISON

Continuation of "Married Comrades"

"SURPRISE! SURPRISE!" Mary caroled joyfully as Noel drew their car to a stop in front of the veranda steps. The next instant she was out of the car, without waiting for Noel's assistance. Dashing up the steps, she seized first her grandmother, then me, and lastly, Dicky in impetuous embraces. Noel, following her more sedately, greeted us less effusively, but with equal warmth and sincerity.

"You never thought we'd get here so early, did you?" Mary queried gleefully.

"Your Aunt Margaret said three o'clock," my mother-in-law declared didactically. "She said you were planning to start at daybreak."

"That's what we did plan at first," Mary answered, "but I got to thinking it over, and I sez to Noel, sez I, 'why not get up at midnight, and start a little later?' So we went and did that little thing, and here we are."

Couldn't Eat.

"But," Mother Graham said in patent dismay, "where could you get anything to eat in the mountains at that time of night?"

"We couldn't," Mary returned blithely, "but we had some fruit and peanut butter crackers and caramels with us, and we were all right until we got to one of those diners with near coffee and eggs. But eating was the least of our troubles—that is, until now." She flashed a mischievous smile at her young husband. "Noel's been fairly gloating for the last 50 miles over the eats he expects to get here at the farm."

"Mary!" Noel ejaculated sternly, but his exclamation was lost in the bustle which Mary's announcement precipitated. Mother Graham and I started for the door with one accord, and Dicky exclaimed:

"You poor kids! But I see the shock troops are in action"—with a wave of the hand toward his mother and me. "You'll have chow aplenty in no time."

Madge Will Do It.

Mother Graham looked at me a bit uncertaintly when we reached the hall.

"I don't suppose there's any use in both of us going to the kitchen," she said.

"And you have so little time to visit with Mary," I answered promptly, "so go on back to her as a good grandmother should. I'll attend to the lunch. It's lucky we just rose from it. As you know, I always insist upon Katie's serving the same menu to herself and Jim that she does to us"

"Hurry! before they begin," Mary's grandmother adjured ludicrously, and I lost no more time, but dashed into the kitchen where I found Katie stooping over the broiler.

Katie Prepared.

"Me, I loocky stiff," she apostrophized as I came into the kitchen with a query on my lips which remained unspoken, for Katie was already answering it. "I vas shoost going get Jeem's loonch und mine, und den I hear car. I peek oudt, und sure snuff dere Mees Mary und Meester Noel. I tink dees morning maybe dey coom early. Vell, you go und tell dem dere loonch be on table before leetle sheeps can vag hees tail. Tell dem get vashed oop und den coom down. Dey can begin by dot time, und den I haf time to say hello!' to dem. Me, I shoost crazy to see my Mees Mary."

"She in anxious to see you, too," I said. "She was just asking about you."

Her face was glowing with the genuine and loyal affection which is hers for all the members of the farmhouse family. With an appreciative pat upon her shoulder, I went back into the hall, to find Jim standing just inside the door which leads to a little rear stoop, evidently waiting for a chance to speak to me unobserved and unheard.
